

FIRST HINTS OF FALL IN AUGUST

Autumn Pleasures for Dames and Damsels in Society Are Ushered In

Club Women Considering Subjects to be Studied During Coming Winter

As it is August, the supposedly hot month of the year, there is already coming a faint hint of autumn pleasure and of the work that comes with the cooler weather for the society dame and damsel.

Not that she calls it work, but nevertheless it means more of a drain on her vitality to keep fresh and sweet and pretty for an endless round of teas, dinners, luncheons and dances than it did for her grandmother to care for her family, do her own spinning and knitting.

The club woman, too, is beginning to think about what she will study the coming winter. Already several programs are in the hands of the printer and plans for study are outlined. The women's music club members are distributing their year books and the program is already arranged for.

In the meantime, excusions to lakes and resorts, and mountains form very pleasant diversions and as the days of summer grow shorter and the calendar approach the end of the year, the most of the "good old summer" for them is over.

There is time enough left for work to be strenuous study or club work, that is a happy mixture of both social and study is a many of Lima's organizations are planning for this fall.

Miss Kathleen Neff, 967 E. North-st., charmingly entertained her evening at home on Saturday for the pleasure of Mrs. Margaret Meyer, who has just returned from Detroit, Mich. A delightful musical program was enjoyed with Mrs. Clarence Klinger, Miss Mary Jellie, Miss Katherine Roberts and Miss Virginia after taking part.

The rooms of the Neff home were made attractive with masses of cattens flowers, the color scheme of green and white was effectively carried out. Later in the evening the hostess served a delicious buffet luncheon assisted by Miss Jane and Virginia Taylor, Miss Mary Jellie and Miss Florence Price. At this time the announcement of the en-

GLARE OF WHITE LIGHTS FADES; PAIR REUNITED

MRS. RUTH JACKSON SCHULTZ

NEW YORK — The glare of New York's great White Way no longer is a lure to pretty Mrs. Ruth Jackson Schultz friend of the young Latin-American dentist Dr. Jose Arenas, who, after wounding the young woman, took his own life. The tragedy occurred in the dentist's "Bohemian" apartment here.

Now the young woman, who left her home and husband in Toledo, Ohio, a year ago to find fame and fortune behind the footlights in New York, is almost recovered from her wounds, and, after questioning by authorities in connection with the tragedy, will return to the Ohio city with her husband, never more to dream of the day when "her name will be in bright lights along Broadway."

The young husband, a prosperous motor car dealer of Toledo, said when he came here for his wife that she always had had a desire to try for fame on the stage, and that a year ago, when she had a chance to "make the big time" with a musical show, he consented. He never heard from her for months, he said, and then finally received letters in which she intimated that she had tired of the life she had sought so long and that she was ready to return.

Later, he said, she told of her acquaintance with the young dentist and of his threats to kill her. She had written him saying she would be in Toledo soon several days before the tragedy occurred in Arenas' apartment.

Schultz hurried to New York immediately upon learning of his wife's connection with the suicide. Police had found the dentist dead and the young woman badly wounded when they broke into the Arenas apartment.

A touching scene was enacted in Bellevue Hospital here when Schultz arrived, took his young wife in his arms and forgave her.

Mrs. Ralph Jacobs, Harrison-ave, entertained the members of the Five Hundred club at her home Friday afternoon. At the conclusion of the afternoon of play Mrs. C. E. Durbin and Mrs. Frank Nelson were awarded prizes, being holders of high score. Mrs. John Harbottle and Mrs. Ralph Hardesty were the only guests. At 5 o'clock the hostess served a delicious tea.

GRACEFUL SCARF OF "ICE WOOL" NEW IN WORLD OF KNIT THINGS

BY ELOISE

If you would be fashionable wear one of the new ice-wool scarfs or shawls at your next garden party or summer dance. They are delicately woven in the finest of wool and come in all of the most delicate shades as well as brilliant green, flame and orange. The brilliant colors are smart with white frocks and the white shawls are favored for wear with colored frocks. The yarn is called ice-wool because of the great luster it has. It is rather a quant idea this of wearing shawls and seems to recall the olden days when lady always had her favorite shawl which she wore when walking on the moonlit veranda or in the garden between dances. This one shown here is made of white ice-wool in ample proportions and in dainty, lacey design. Such a shawl will be an addition to the smartest gown and will really be found quite comfortable on the cooler evenings of fall.

SUSIE SMART SAYS:

Dear Miss Susie Smart: I am a girl twenty years of age and have never gone with any boys, yet I met a young man and he wants to correspond. Do you think it would be all right? He seems to think a great deal of me and I like him.

Yes, it would be all right to correspond.

Dear Susie Smart: I am a girl of eighteen, have light hair, blue eyes and a fair complexion. I have very short, thick, curly hair and wear 1 in curls—from six to twelve. Do you think I am too old for that style?

I have several admirers, but only one that I know I care for. Do you think I should just care for him or have a good time with all young people? I have known this young man for one and a half years and corresponded with him constantly. He seems to really care for me at times, and then again he seems indifferent that makes me like him the more, because he keeps me guessing. Do you think he loves me?

A GIRL IN LOVE.
Yes, you are too old to wear your hair as you say. If you pinned the curls on top of your head it would look all right. I imagine from what you say that your hair is almost bobbed in length. Older women sometimes look well with their hair bobbed, but a girl who is just past childhood looks awkward with her hair combed as she combed it in childhood.

Have a good time with different young men. Probably the young man you care for is too young to be in love and realize the fact.

Dear Miss Smart: I am a girl 21 years of age and go with a tellow the same age. I have a good education and have traveled a great deal and have gone with several different fellows steady, but never was in love before. I find myself loving this fellow so much that I cannot stand to quit him. He loves me and shows it in every way. It seems he almost idolizes me, but people tell me he is touch. Someone is continually knocking him and it hurts me more than I can tell.

His people are wonderful and I love them, too, but I am afraid people will talk about me if I continue to go with him. He treats me wonderfully and has shown himself to be a gentleman in every way. I go with other men but I can't care for anyone else as much as I do him.
We seemed to love each other from the first. I am a poor girl and my reputation means so much to me.

Would you advise me to give him up because of his reputation when I know our love is pure and he treats me with the greatest respect?

BLACK-EYED SILVER.
I would not advise you to drop the man if he turns over a new leaf and his conduct is irreproachable.
People will notice the change in him and they will respect you, for they will know you were the cause.

Your great love may prove to be a gentleman in every way. Wait a few months before you permit him to talk of love to you.
Without a doubt he idolizes you because you are good and pure; the man who has sacrificed his right to a pure woman longs for her all the more. The young man you care for may be very magnetic and fascinate you for the time being. Be sure that you have common sense.

If he continues to live as he has been doing, eviling the content of respectable people, by all means give him up. You cannot afford to sacrifice your good name.

Dear Miss Smart: I don't know whether you can help me or not, but my husband is a merchant for a large automobile company in another city.
He makes the best of wages, but I am sorry to state, he is very dishonest, and I can do nothing to make him stop.

He has a trunk full of stolen tools which he takes from the company every chance he gets. When he was home a month ago he told me he had over $200.00 worth of tools. When I told him I was going to report him to the company, he said I could, but my greedy little world stop also. We have four small children and he did not send me a dollar since he went away. At present we have very little to eat in the house and no money.
My mother gave me our home, so I have no rent to pay. I have always done all my own work so all he has to pay out is for the groceries.

Please tell me what to do.

Ans.—Your case is a very sad one,
and rather unusual. Your husband must have a very stunted nature to act the way he does, and your protecting him further will not help matters a bit. If he was my husband and refused to support me, I would put the matter in the hands of the authorities, since you can do nothing with him. A man who steals and refuses to support his family is not worthy of your silence.

Perhaps, when he sees that you refuse to shield him he will give up the practice of stealing.

Dear Miss Smart: Please tell me where a girl can take swimming lessons in this city.

Ans.—Send a self-addressed stamp envelope for your reply.

Dear Miss Smart: Will you please advise me if I should have my hair cut short and have two children. The hair is very sweet and I love them dearly. My husband is so cross to the oldest one, as soon as he comes home he has him crying. He is also cross with me and I do all I can to make him happy.

The most efficient washer must be the one that gives the greatest agitation with the least wear on the clothes. The method of washing determines how much or how little wear the agitation will give to clothes in getting them clean.

Clothes can be washed clean and quickly with gentle handling as you may learn from home demonstrations of the E. Z. Vacuum Washer. Before you buy, look through the clothing.

The frequency of agitation and the gentle handling are superlatives that distinguish the E. Z. Vacuum Washer.

FAREWELL IS TO BE SAID TO FAMILY

Country Club Will Be Scene Of Delightful Entertainment For
Mr. and Mrs. Linneman

Have Done Much for Success of Club — Mr. and Mrs. Glover Plan Dance

DELIGHTFUL in anticipation is the farewell dinner and card party, which has been planned at the Shawnee Country club next Tuesday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Linneman, who will leave in the near future for California to make their future home.

Probably no one in the club has gone more towards its success than Mr. and Mrs. Linneman and the appreciation of the club for their cooperation and assistance will be fittingly shown Tuesday.

Club members, their families and friends will participate in the delightful affair. The fact that the attractive Linneman home was located adjointing the club grounds, the open hospitality of Mr. and Mrs.
Linneman have endeared them to a wide circle of club members.

Mr. and Mrs. Linneman's leaving for the sunny California is much regretted and the party will be an occasion for extending their well wishes and a safe journey, as well as a pleasant home, amidst congenial friends, in the golden West.

The committee in charge of arrangements consists of: Warren J.
McLachlan, Homer H. Hughes,
George E. Bayly, Thomas D. Mc-Laughlin, William L. Russell, and William L. Parmenter. Dinner will be served at 6:30 o'clock and from that time until the dancing, it will be a pleasant company that will gather around Mr. and Mrs. Linneman for a farewell word.

There are some of his people with us almost all of the time, and I treat them the best I can. I never go any place and he is gone most of the time, and he won't let me go along.
I am very young and would be happy if my husband would not be so cross around home. Please write and tell me what I can do? I would do anything to be happy. Where do you live? Could a person come to you and talk to you? Please answer soon. A VOYAGER'S GIRL.

Ans.—Selfishness is probably your husband's main trouble. He never thinks of the happiness of his wife and children. If you keep him comfortable, provide a nice, clean home and do your best, there is no reason why he should be so cross.
If he refuses to take you anywhere, go somewhere without him, and he will soon see that you can enjoy yourself without him. Whatever you do, don't stay home and worry over it. Selfish will never make things right.

It is impossible to talk personally with our readers. All questions are answered thru the medium of this column.

THE ROOM WITH THE TASELS

BY CAROLYN WELLS

Eve wore the light gray skirt of her travelling costume, and a thin sheer silk blouse, whose V-neck fell away from her long, slender throat. Her hand on the door knob, she suddenly turned her strange beryl eyes toward Stebbins, her face turning whiter and her thin lips redder as she gazed.

"This is the room— isn't it?" she breathed, and her hand slowly fell from the knob and hung loosely at her side.

"Yes, ma'am," replied Stebbins, stolidly. "How'd you know?"

"How could I help knowing?" and Eve's voice rang out like a clarion. "I see it! I see it all!"

She rushed across the hall and fell trembling on a settee. Tracy flew to her side, and took her hand. "None of that tonight. We do want your haunted house, but the long journey up here and your confounded negligence in the matter of lights and servants and general good will, has got on the ladies' nerves. Beat it now, to the kitchen, or wherever your quarters are, but you stay here tonight and be ready to report in the morning. You hear me?"

"Yes, sir," and shrugging his shoulders, the man disappeared among the showdows in the back of the hall.

The great main hall was so large that the lights they had were all insufficient for illumination. There seemed to be innumerable doors and openings of side corridors, also, a second staircase, far behind the main one.

"Here's a good-looking room, let's go in here," said Tracy, stepping thru some old, faded draperies to the room on the left of the hall as one entered the house.

Hardwick followed, and the others with lamps and candles pushed. It was a large, dignified apartment, evidently a parlour or ballroom of the old mansion. The furniture was old, carved rosewood, its upholstery worn, but fairly decent. Oil portraits were on the walls and massive ornaments of imitation bronze stood about, showing white here and there where the coating was chipped off.

Yellowish curtains veiled the mantels, and the windows were hung with heavy rep curtains which, however, veiled no lighter ones.

"Ghastly!" cried Norma.

"What do you mean by ghastly?" began the Professor, and Tracy laughed.

"She didn't mean it at all, Professor," he said. "Miss Cameron meant to say hideous. Now, don't ask me what I mean by hideous, just look at the interior decorations here and draw your own conclusions as to my meaning. But the not to be called aesthetic, this furniture is fairly comely. The springs of this sofa are intact—come sit by my side little darling." This last to Vernie, who was wide-eyed and alert, lapping up these strange, new impressions.

"All right," and she flung herself down beside him. "You're a real comfort, Mr. Tracy—you're so, so—unministerial!"

"Thank you, my child. One needn't carry one's pulp voice into social life."

"Oh, I don't mean you do or say anything that a man of your calling oughtn't to, but you're so nice about it."

"I think so too," chattered Milly. "I do think a clergyman with a sense of humor makes a fine combination."

The mental atmosphere gradually lightened and when Landon suggested they all retire, it was a composed and merry hearted group that obeyed the summons.

When twelve sonorous strokes boomed from the tall clock in the upper hall, the men beneath the roof of Black Aspens were all sleeping more or less soundly.

Milly, with only occasional little quivering shudders, slumbered in Landon's arms. Vernie slept with the sound dreamless sleep of youth.

But Eve and Norma were wide awake, and unable to close their eyes.

In adjoining rooms, the communicating door ajar they could hear one another toss restlessly, but they said no words.

Norma's blue eyes were wide open, her thoughts rambling over the strange surroundings in which she found herself, and her mind leaping forward, speculating on what might happen.

Eve, her long, glittering eyes half closed, listened for any sound: her nerves alert, her thoughts darting from material things to the supernatural, every muscle tense with a nameless apprehension.

More hours were rung out by the old clock, and at last dawn began to creep in at the deep narrow windows of the old house.

With a shrug and a stretch Vernie awoke. Drowsily, in the half light she tried to make out her surroundings and then, suddenly remembering where she was, she dove her head under her blanket, in a quick rush of fear. Then curiosity conquered, and she came to the surface again, and looked about. The light, growing gradually stronger, showed the appointments of the room, the ugly old four-poster bedstead, of light wood—apple or hickory—the heavy rep lumber-quits, that seemed to be a feature of the house, and the scantily appointed dresser, on which the night before, she had set her extinguished candle.

Shadows still lurked in the corners of the room, still hung round the draperies and furniture, yet thru the gloom Vernie saw something that made her eyes stare and her flesh creep. Clenching her hands till her sharp nails bit into her palms, she gave a shriek that rang thru the silent house.

DIARY OF AN ENGAGED GIRL

BY PHYLLIS PHILLIPS

NO LONGER PRINCE CHARMING, JUST PLAIN HARRY

After the first shock following Nessa's fatal disclosure I was seized with a great desire to laugh, and laugh I did. Most mirthfully. Finally, when I was so doing, and she, too, joined me, we had the best time ever between us, and at the end, while wiping our eyes, we agreed that that was the only sensible way to take men anyhow!

I expect that if I live very much longer with some of my friends Romance will slowly curl up and die within my tender young bosom. But it may all be for the best at that.

Not only has Prince Charming—may, he has suddenly become himself, just plain, unadulterated Harry to me now—a wife, but twins of six years old, little girls, plus a young son of seven and one-half.

I feel a wee bit sorry for poor Mrs. Harry, somehow or other, but as Nessa says, she knows her Harry thoroughly, and lets him wander and philander about as much as he chooses; for he always does run back to her, happily.

Makes the kissed ones feel so good, all this side information about this Don Juan, oh, what? Well I still think that it is our foolish training that is at fault, rather than Harry or myself or the other girls that he has kissed. We don't ever discover how to tell a lover from a husband! And there is a way, so they say.

Nessa was amused to death at my story of Harry and his love for me. "Lord, honey, he makes love to every new face that he meets," said she brutally. "He just can't help himself and no one ever takes him seriously. But he is a dear fellow just the same and we think the world of him, for all his

Good thing for me that I was not in love with Harry, all the same, for I might not have gotten over it so easily as he; but, thank goodness, it was only some romantic streak in me that was touched by him, and his dark eyes—not my heart.

Nessa and I had a mighty good time together, and she showed me some of her illustrations for a new fairy-tale book. She really is awfully clever and does the snappiest black and white sketches. Everything so full of fantasy. She looks like a little gypsy, herself.

It interested me greatly to find out from her own line that she and Ted agreed about the same amount of money a year, and share all expenses. No wonder they are so happy. I think that they are an ideal couple, and with no hesitation Nessa acknowledged that they were all of that.

She also told me that if she were to let Ted support her, and become just a wife with no outlook farther than the four walls of the home, and no work of her own, they would become a pair of fighting cocks within a week and end up in Reno!

Whoever said that untied Youth (that is myself) does not know anything? Why, I knew all along that the true basis for a lasting happiness in matrimony is mutual respect, which comes from both parties working or being interested in something besides just each other, and in mutually contributing to the up-keep of the home. And I am not a Socialist either, so there! Blame it on that seventh sense, or my womanly instinct if you like, and you'll be nearer the truth.

JUST A GIRL

BY JANE PHELPS

AN EMBARRASSING OCCURENCE

I had been at Mrs. Rush's just three weeks. Aline was to give a small dinner dance, and she had demanded that I assist in serving the midnight supper.

"The butter is getting cranky, and he'll be leaving if he hasn't more help," Mrs. Rush had explained. "Very well," I had said. I was so tired that a little more work could make no difference. I had become apathetic in a way.

I wonder if under the circumstances it is to be wondered at. I now went about my duties mechanically. Mrs. Rush had upstairs girl at last, but it made very little difference in my work, or in my hours of work, because Miss Aline—as I had been told to call her—demanded every leisure moment.

"If you won't give me a maid, she'll have to do double duty," heard her tell her mother.

Your father is grumbling about expense at it is. You can do very well without a maid at your age."

"Zena will have to do what is necessary then."

"Very well! But be careful not to put too much upon her, Aline. I have seen a look on her face once or twice when you ordered her to wait upon you that I didn't like. If she leaves us I don't know, but she'll find another maid. And she is really obliging."

"Oh, she won't leave! Not many people hire a girl who has no references, who doesn't take her day off, and who wears such lovely boots and underwear. There's something mysterious about her. She is hiding from someone, or has done something that she is afraid she'll be arrested for if she goes out, or something."

"What an imagination you have, Aline! Remember what I say. Don't ask too much of her."

The night of the party I attended the young ladies when they came. I did for them just what I so many times had done for me. I took their wraps, saw that they had any toilet necessities they wished, helped them rearrange their hair if it had become mussed, and all the little things a flock of girls usually demand when making themselves lovely as guests.

They were a bright, attractive lot of girls, and had I not been so tired helping Aline to dress, arrange the rooms, etc. I would have enjoyed hearing their bright chatter. It was like a bit out of my own life come back.

I tried to rest until I should be needed later in the evening, but something made me very uneasy. I felt a premonition that something was going to happen to me, something unpleasant. I tried to laugh at myself to dispel the feeling, but it wasn't any use. The depression grew stronger instead of diminishing.

It was nearly 1 o'clock when Mrs. Rush said I was needed. The supper was a sort of buffet affair, and I was to see the young guests were properly served.

At first I could distinguish no one in particular, excepting Mrs. Rush, and Aline. The others were just a jumble of light dresses, pretty arms and shoulders, and the black coated boys with whom they were chatting so gaily.

Then as they drew nearer the tables I heard a gasp—then—

"Zena Stewart! Where have you been?" and Tony Deland stood looking down at me.

I had heard of the wish that the floor would open and swallow me up, but I never had experienced it until then. If only I could have disappeared! I tried to get away, but not only was I hemmed in by the guests, but Tony in some way had possessed himself of my hand and seemed determined not to let go.

"Please let me go, Tony, and please don't say my name," I begged, just as Mrs. Rush came toward us, her face black and threatening. Before she could say a word, Tony said:

"Miss Stewart is an old friend of mine, Mrs. Rush."

"She is now my servant. Please allow her to fulfill her duties."

I don't think she meant to be unkind. She had no way of knowing who or what I was, my position here, and she probably considered Tony had been making friends with someone beneath him. The look on his face was almost laughable, even under the circumstances.

"Yes, Tony," I said, so low none but he could hear. "I am a maid here. Please don't tell the rest."

Then I turned, and as I could not help to wait upon the group of boys and girls who kept casting curious, slighting looks at me. Tomorrow—Zena Eludes Her Friends. (Copyright, 1920).

LOVE AND MARRIED LIFE

BY IDA MCGLOVE GIBSON

RUTH AND CHARLES SURPRISE US

I wonder if anyone will ever see what I have written down here in this diary. I wonder if before Mary is married, I shall let her read what is in this little book.

Sometimes I think it will be a good thing for her to read it, because I am sure she would understand that all this I have written here is more or less lack of adjustment—lack of proper education of John and me. We had come to the greatest thing in our lives, with absolutely no knowledge of it and for these last few years, we had been acquiring this knowledge thru the hard school of experience. I would like to say much to give my daughter from what I have suffered. I wonder if it will be possible.

I think if any other woman were to read what I am writing here unless she had had very nearly the same experience that I have had, she would think that I was a very nervous sort of a person. And yet I expect I was just about the average girl who married without the slightest realization of what marriage might mean. I only knew I wanted to be with John and I fully expected that our life together was to be a kind of glorified courtship under the sanction of the church.

If I live I shall teach Mary something of what is before her if she marries!

Today, I felt as I was riding home, that I was going to be happy in the future. When John is sweet to me, I have that little hint of Paradise that marriage might be. And when he is not—I sometimes come to the point where I wish—no, no, I am sure I really never wished that, it must have been my sub-conscious evil self that spoke. I'm never going to be unhappy again. I am going to remember this wonderful hour that I have just spent with John whenever something comes up that hurts me.

All the way back to the hotel Hope was singing a wonderful song in my heart. As I passed Helens' door, she waved at me frantically and I had my chauffeur stop the motor.

Helena came to me with her face alight with joy. "Katherine," she said, "I have the most wonderful news for you. I've had a letter from Ruth."

"You have had a letter from Ruth," I repeated stupidly.

"Yes, dear," she said. "Ruth has written me a long letter. She said that she thought that Bobby and I should be told first that she is going to marry your cousin, Charles Goodwin."

"Yes, dear," she said. "Ruth has written me a long letter. She said that she thought that Bobby and I should be told first that she is going to marry your cousin, Charles Goodwin."

"Ruth," I said, "I've had a letter from Ruth."

"Yes, dear," she said. "Ruth has written me a long letter. She said that she thought that Bobby and I should be told first that she is going to marry your cousin, Charles Goodwin."

"Ruth," I said, "I've had a letter from Ruth."

"Yes, dear," she said. "Ruth has written me a long letter. She said that she thought that Bobby and I should be told first that she is going to marry your cousin, Charles Goodwin."

"Ruth," I said, "I've had a letter from Ruth."

"Yes, dear," she said. "Ruth has written me a long letter. She said that she thought that Bobby and I should be told first that she is going to marry your cousin, Charles Goodwin."

"Ruth," I said, "I've had a letter from Ruth."

I felt a little key grip at the heart and then I knew that it was wicked of me to feel unhappy because Charles was going to be happy with another woman.

"Oh, I'm so glad," I said, and truly, as I said it, I was glad. "You know, Helen, that Ruth and Charles are very well suited to each other. Ruth needs a quiet, gentle, domestic man, but one who has a firm idea of justice and right to help her bring up her children. Charles loves them all."

"Yes, Ruth wrote me," said Helena, smiling, that she believed the fact of her ready-made family was one of the things that appealed to him. She said the children all adore him."

"I am sure that is true, for I have seen them together."

"Katherine, Ruth told me that Charles had told her that you were his first love, but that now that all passion had become a brotherly affection, which he supposed was for you and yours. Then Ruth continued," said Helen, reading from Ruth's letter. "Do you know I am glad that Charles told me that, for my heart I knew it and his telling it to me made me realize more than anything else that he would never leave me and secure from me—I know he had taken me into the innermost place in his heart."

"Have you told Bobby, yet?" I asked.

"No, I was just reading the letter as I saw you driving by. Don't you think he will be pleased?" she asked. I was silent.

"Why, of course he will be pleased! My dear, I think the only thing that Bobby's happiness with you has been that sometimes he has been afraid that Ruth might be unhappy and I now feel that she cannot be."

"Here he comes, my dear," I said, looking down the road and watching the lighted wheels of a motor. "And I'll leave you to talk it over together."

When I reached the hotel, Mrs. Parker met me at the door with a worried face. "The baby isn't so well," she said. "I'm sending for the doctor."

I rushed into the room from which I had heard the alarmed shouting of my child. As I came in she began to choke.

"Hurry, hurry, she is dying!" I said.

When Your Boy Says "Come On Dad"—Have You The Strength and Energy To Enjoy His Fun?

Physician Explains WHY MIDDLE AGE IS THE DANGER PERIOD Or Are You Weakened and Worn By the Day's Work Because Your Blood Is Thin, Pale and Starving For Want of Iron?

When The Blood Should Be Kept Rich and Red By Taking Some Form Of Organic Iron Like Nuxated Iron—It Often Increases The Strength and Endurance Of Nervous, Run-down People In Two Weeks' Time.

That few persons in America today reach middle age with sound, normal bodies simply because they fail to take proper care of their physical condition is the opinion of Dr. J. Van Nostrand, a physician of many years' experience and formerly of the British Naval Medical Service.

"There are thousands of cases," says Dr. Wallace, "where this weak, run-down condition in which so many men and women are afflicted at 40 or 50 may be due to the fact that their blood has lost its richness and is becoming thin, pale and starving for want of healthy, strength-building iron. The men and women of today need more iron in their blood than was the case twenty or thirty years ago. This because of the demoralized diet which now is served daily in thousands of homes and also because of the demand for greater resistance necessary to offset the greater number of health hazards to be met at every turn. When the iron in the blood runs low, signs of old age creep into the system—the vitality is lowered, the flesh becomes flabby, the muscles are weakened—and many a man and woman who ought to be in the prime of life find themselves too tired and listless to enjoy even the simplest pleasures. Yet such men and women often undergo a remarkable change the moment they get plenty of the right kind of iron into their blood. Organic Iron—Nuxated Iron—by building up the blood and creating new blood cells, strengthens the nerves, rebuilds the weakened tissues and helps to renew increased energy into the whole system. Whether a person is young or old, in my opinion Nuxated Iron is the most valuable tonic, strength and blood-builder any physician can prescribe for his patients who are approaching middle life."

Dr. John J. Van Nostrand, formerly Medical Inspector and Clinical Physician on the Board of Health of New York City, says: "There are countless numbers of men and women of today who at 40 are broken in health and steadily going downward as physical and mental decay simply because they are allowing worry, overwork and nervous strain to sap the iron from their blood and destroy its power to change food into living tissue, muscle and brain. To supply this iron deficiency and build strong, healthy men and women, better able physically to meet the problems of everyday life, I believe physicians should as every opportunity prescribe organic iron—Nuxated Iron—for in my experience it is one of the best tonic and blood-builders known to medical science."

If you feel your health slipping—look pale or languid—irritable or weak—unable to keep up your work or your ambition and interest in life—you certainly owe it to yourself to make this simple test. See how long you can work or how far you can walk, without becoming tired. Next your motor. It is ironed by all good doctors.

Barbers Once Were Surgeons

But that's no reason now for shaving to feel like an operation

Until the 18th century, barbers were surgeons. Cutting meant cures. Cures meant pain.

People thought no good could come unless pain came first. Some folks seem to think the same today about shaving. They have their skins scraped, or do the scraping themselves.

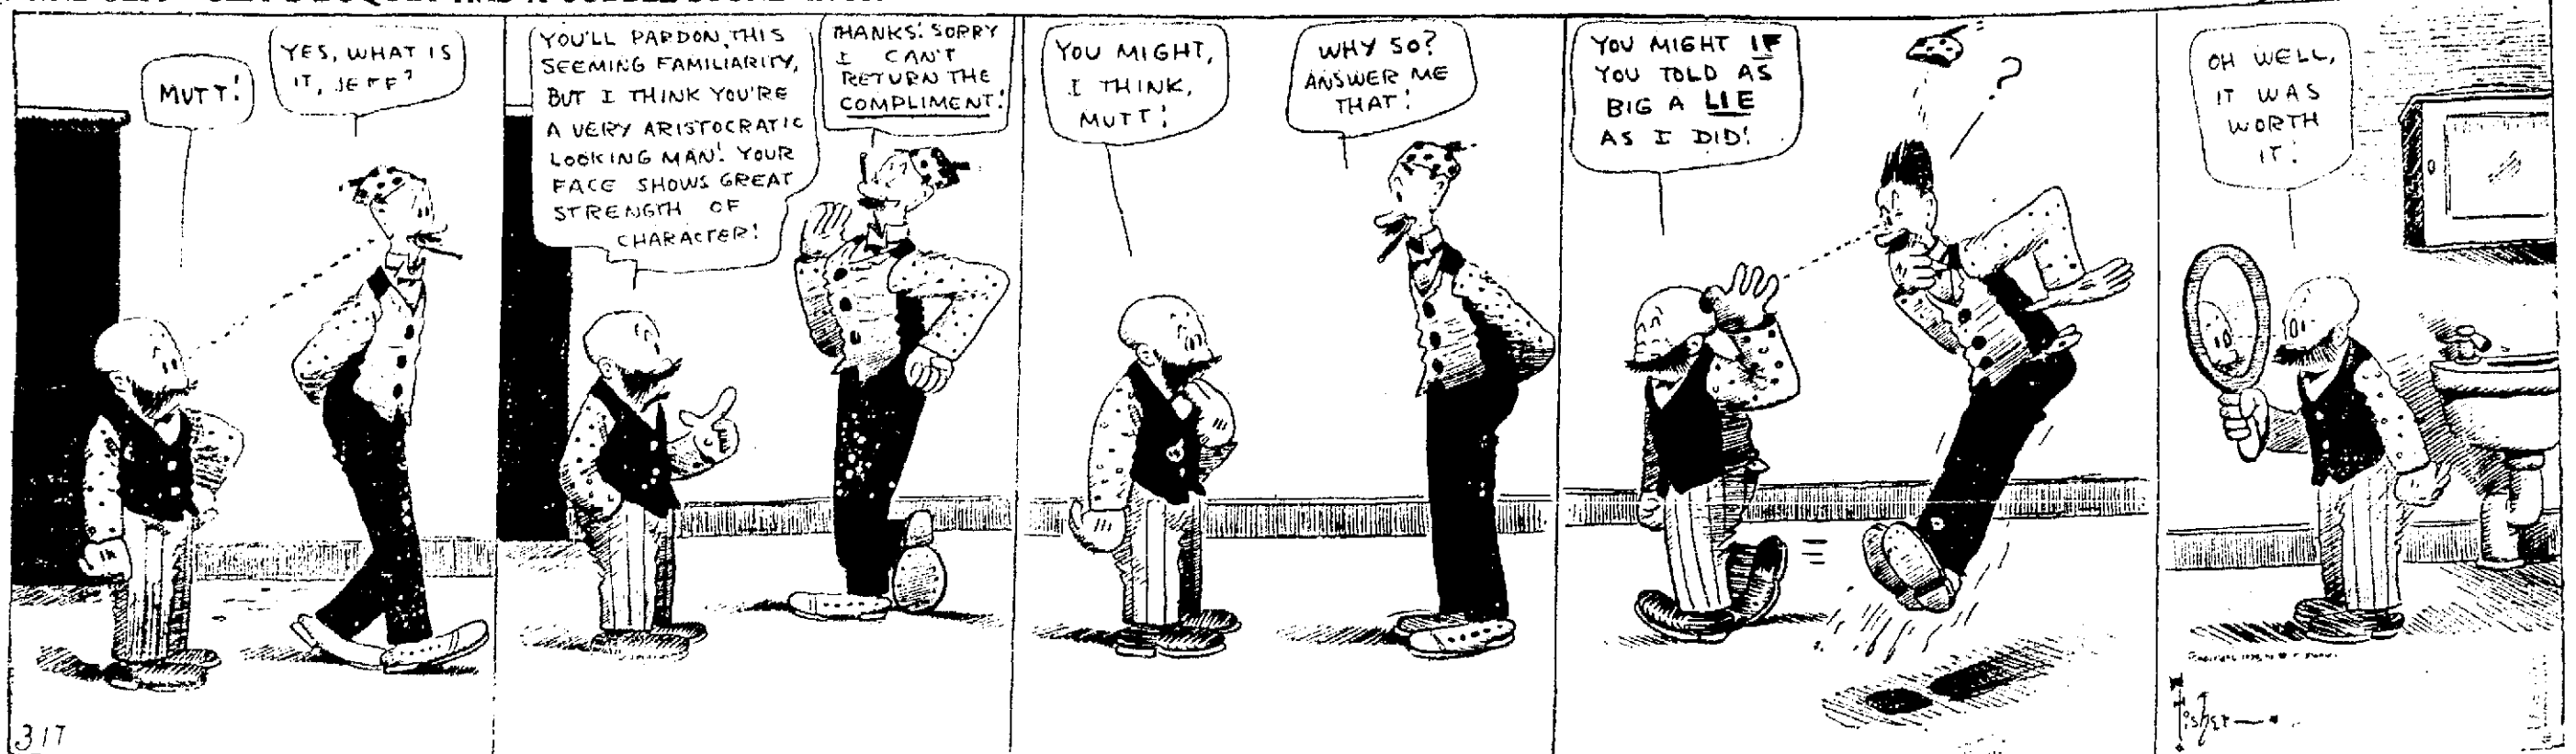

And there is pain, due to the straight stroke. It makes the hairs flatten down. Then the razor flows through. It pulls, and the face is sore.

So science said the razor must stroke down and SIDEWAYS, or up and SIDEWAYS, at the same time.

Stroke diagonally at each separate hair, and you get a joy shave. But to learn how to do this with the ordinary hoe-type razor, you must practice

A quiet man recently took his wife to call on a feminine friend. The husband sat in a rocker and smoked while the two women rattled on at a terrific rate, discussing the neighbors, fashions, suffrage,

After his second cigar the husband began to yawn. He listened a few minutes more, then he broke up the meeting with the exclamation:

"It is time to go home now, Edith, you have started to repeat!"

"Hello!"

"Hello! Is this G. J. Hicks, candidate for city councilman?"

"Yes."

GENIUS LEAVES TO NOVICES THE FANTASTIC AND OSTENTATIOUS, AND ITSELF PIERCES DIRECTLY TO THE SIMPLE AND THE TRUE

Those of us who lay no claim to genius may take guidance from genius.

Here at the Peerless factory we have bent our best efforts to the attainment of simplicity, in our organization as in our product.

Red tape and the trappings of industrial oligarchy find no place here in our relations with one another. The trappings of show are barred from the Peerless Motor Car.

Though we may not hope to build the mythical "perfect car," we may approach it, and we believe that the Peerless Two-power-range Eight stands today very far out on the road to what may be called the perfection of human attainment in motor car building.

It has been five years since we reached, in the development of the Two-power-range Eight, what we had striven for as our ideal and completely rounded out performance of efficient simplicity in a motor car.

Since then we have refined this car—but we have never found it necessary to change it fundamentally.

The present Peerless Two-power-range Eight expresses more eloquently than we can do in words, the real spirit of our organization—to "pierce directly to the simple and the true."

HARDING BRANDED "TOOL OF RING"

Cox Turns Fire on G. O. P. Nominee in Wheeling Speech.

FIFTH ADDRESS OF THE DAY

Given Big Demonstrations Along Route to West Virginia.

WHEELING, W. Va.—With a direct charge that a senatorial "ring" is determined "to annex the presidency to its domination," Governor James M. Cox, Democratic presidential candidate, here Saturday night wound up the first big day of his stump campaign.

Five militant political addresses were made by the nominee. The theme running thru all of them was that the Democratic party stands for permanent peace thru the league of nations as against continued war and a separate peace with Germany; and for progressive principles as against reaction. Cox in addition to two addresses here, spoke at Zanesville, Cambridge, and St. Clairsville, O., stopping half an hour at each place while making the trip by motor.

BIG DEMONSTRATIONS

The nominee was given big demonstrations wherever he spoke, his method of hurling challenges at the Republican, apparently pleasing the crowds.

In two addresses here before large crowds, Cox sharply attacked the Republican senatorial "oligarchy" for blocking national readjustment and attempting "to fasten upon rank and file of the party a creed of fraud and intrigue."

Cox's campaign fire often was turned directly on Senator Harding. He devoted considerable time to an attempt to brand the Republican nominee as a tool of the so-called "ring" and to a bitter denunciation of the latter's proposal to discard the league of nations covenant in the hope of forming a new association of nations. Slinging sarcasm was hurled at the Harding front porch campaign.

Again the governor praised the league, pledging that it would be put into practical operation after March 4, 1921 "without continuing months of useless discussion."

"America resisted a world menace, and now we intend to establish protection against another menace," he said declaring that the Republicans have failed to present any concrete plan for permanent peace.

NOT OWNED BY "RING"

The address Saturday night, delivered before a large crowd at the River Front Park probably was the most vigorous and direct the nominee has flung at the Republican party since his nomination. His address Saturday afternoon before the Democratic state convention often was interrupted by demonstrations of approval.

"I was not nominated by a senatorial 'ring' nor any kind of a ring," Cox said Saturday night. "I decline to be tied to my front porch by a senatorial ring. I deny it the right to hold me there, muzzled in the face of grave public emergency, and when I am elected, I don't intend that a senatorial ring or any other kind of a ring shall own me."

Mention of President Wilson's name by Cox at the convention drew a big demonstration.

"The outstanding impression of my visit to the White House," said Cox, "was this:

"The president gave a promise to the mothers of the country when he asked for their sons, and he wants to live long enough to see that promise fulfilled."

The greatest applause came when Cox shouted to the Democratic delegates: "Senator Harding will not make a separate peace with Germany because he will not be given an opportunity. There will not be a separate peace because I will not make it."

PRUDENT ACTION DEMANDED

"Hit 'em again," some one in the crowd shouted.

"Serious times demand prudent action. In political campaign when the welfare of every man, woman and child in this country is concerned as it has never been concerned before, plain talk is demanded," Cox continued.

"The Republican party has passed into reactionary control. The fight which Roosevelt made to reform it, availed for the time but its effect was not lasting. Domination by political figures once violently repudiated by the American electorate, is unwholesome and undemocratic."

"The men who control the United States senate are determined to annex the president to their domination, and in what they believe to be a certain Republican year they have done things which they would not have dared to think of doing in the

SECOND BANK IS CRUSHED UNDER CRASH OF PONZI

Polish Industrial Association Closed by Commissioner.

FEELING AT HIGH TENSION

Resentment Strong Against "Financial Wizard" and Associates

BOSTON, Mass.—Amid a wagging of gossip tongues and an increasing tide of resentment, Boston Saturday night counted the cost of Ponzi's finance.

Gossip dealt with those who may have been interested in the scheme by which residents of this section were swindled out of millions, according to allegations of officials and with the reports of concealed loot. Resentment was high, not only against Charles Ponzi, covering behind the jail bars, but also against those who may have been implicated in his alleged illegal operations.

POLICE UNDER PROBE

The Boston police department was under investigation. An investigation into the nature of the dealings of members of the force with Ponzi's concern, was ordered by Police Commissioner Curtis. Indications were that wholesale suspensions and even discharges from service may follow.

The investors in Ponzi's scheme were asking how the Hanover Trust Company, whose doors have been closed, happened to be used as a state depository, giving added strength in the eyes of the prospective customers.

ANOTHER BANK CLOSED

The second financial institution to fall in the Ponzi crash closed its doors Saturday. The banking commissioner declared the Polish Industrial Association, with thousands of dollars on deposit, would be unable to meet its liabilities and closed the institution. The loans of both the Hanover bank and the Polish Industrial Association are of doubtful value, the banking commissioner held. Henry Chielinski is president of both institutions.

Besides Ponzi, four officers of the Old Colony Exchange Company were still held in jail Saturday night in default of $50,000 bail. Branch offices of the Ponzi concern and the Old Colony company were closed three-out New England, and in some instances, agents held in custody.

STORIES OF RUIN TOLD

As the hundreds of disappointed men and women rushed to Attorney General Allen's office Saturday to tell that they knew about Ponzi and to give information about their investments, stories of ruin and misery were disclosed.

As these hundreds brought their notes to be scrutinized the figures in Ponzi's liabilities mounted by leaps and bounds.

While state officials were thus working to complete their list of Ponzi's investors, the federal authorities were seeking money relieved to have been cashed by Ponzi when he realized that the end of his scheme was imminent.

Officials believe that enormous sums of money were transferred and deposited by Ponzi in his wife's name. This money, officials state, can and probably will be recovered. Despatches from Washington indicate that the bushel basket millionaires may have sent large sums abroad and that if such is the case attempts will be made to bring his assets to this country for the benefit of creditors.

Federal authorities have started a systematic search of all banks in the state and it is likely that the cooperation of authorities in other states will be asked in the search to uncover Ponzi's "concealed assets."

BAIL SET AT $100,000

While Ponzi sat in a cell in the East Cambridge jail, held by the federal authorities on the original charge of using the mails to defraud, state authorities and Ponzi's counsel argued over the question of bail if Ponzi should be arraigned on the warrant obtained by the state charging the promoter with larceny on fifty-three counts to the total amount of more than $24,000. The state asked that bail be set at $100,000. Ponzi's counsel argued in favor of $50,000. The final figure has yet to be decided.

There is very little likelihood that Ponzi will be given his liberty under any circumstances. Following his surrender by his bondsmen Friday, Ponzi has been unable to obtain the bonds of $25,000 necessary to obtain release under the federal charge. If he should be released under bonds, the police are waiting to waive the state warrant on him and he would again be faced with the necessity of furnishing greatly increased bail.

RAISIN CONSUMPTION UP 1400 PER CENT

WASHINGTON.—Increased consumption of raisins in the United States since the advent of prohibition is believed to account for the 1,400 per cent increase in imports of this commodity from Spain during the first six months of 1920. Nearly 8,000,000 pounds were exported from Malaga to the United States up to June 30, according to the department of agriculture's bureau of markets, "a quantity that exceeds the total raisin exports from that port for the seven years period 1913-1919, including."

SUFFRAGE BATTLE THREATENS SUIT

Bitterness Develops Among Women in Tennessee Fight.

SITUATION IS UNCERTAIN

Victory Claimed by Both Advocates and Opponents.

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—Uncertainty persists as the struggle to obtain Tennessee's ratification of the federal suffrage amendment nears the end.

Both advocates and opponents of the amendment claim victory in the house of representatives. Each faction asserts it is assured more than 50 votes, the constitutional majority of the membership.

"There is absolutely no chance of defeat," said Representative Joseph Hanover, leader of the suffrage forces, Saturday night. "The resolution will be passed by a liberal majority."

VIEWERS OF OPPOSITION

Miss Charlotte Rowe, spokesman for the anti-ratificationists, declared they are not worried by ratification in the senate Friday and predict defeat for the resolution in the house.

"It will be remembered that both in Mississippi and Delaware the senate ratified, but the amendment was defeated in the house by 2 to 1," said Miss Rowe.

She added that these two states were then working under the same "party pressure" as Tennessee is now.

The house is expected to vote Tuesday, following a meeting Monday night of its committee on constitutional amendments.

An effort may be made to bring the question to an issue Monday by taking the resolution of ratification from the hands of the committee, but leaders do not expect this. The resolution passed by the senate Friday will be received in the house Monday, but under the rules must lie over for a day.

BITTERNESS DEVELOPS

Hanover predicted the committee will make a favorable report. Anti-suffragists said the resolution will either be kept in committee or reported unfavorably.

Considerable bitterness is developing between the rival camps of women lobbyists. One of the anti-suffrage Saturday she will file a suit for slander against a prominent suffragist in the state court Monday. The anti-suffrageists said she has proof that she was publicly charged with being "a notorious woman," Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the National Suffrage Association, who for the most part has maintained silence, issued an emphatic denial Saturday night, that she had any part in preparing or circulating the "woman's bible" as the anti-suffrageists have charged.

After declaring she had never had anything to do with the "woman's bible" and had favored its repudiation, Mrs. Catt said that continued publication of the false assertion can only be interpreted as intentional and malicious.

Seth M. Walker, speaker of the house and an opponent of suffrage, replied Saturday to President Wilson's telegram urging concurrence of the house in the senate action.

Walker said: "I have the profound honor to acknowledge your wire of August 13th. I do not attempt to express the views of other members of the lower house of Tennessee but speak for myself alone, which on the Anthony amendment are contrary to yours. You were too great to ask it and I don't believe that men of Tennessee will surrender honest convictions for political expediency or harmony."

ROME RECOGNIZES SOVIET REGIME

Independent Policies Toward Moscow Adopted by Allies.

FRANCE BACKS UP WRANGEL

Labor in Accord With Stand Taken by London.

LONDON.—The red tide still was rising in Poland Saturday night but Britain, having recovered from its first shock at the Bolshevik advance, quietly went about its business of retooling, all excitement having vanished.

Premier Lloyd George intended to spend Sunday quietly, out of town while King George was making ready to go to his castle at Balmoral, Scotland, for the shooting season.

BRITAIN WATCHES

Downing street, however, kept in close touch with the situation and it was understood the premier was "immediately advised of any important developments."

It appears likely that Britain, France and Italy each will have its own independent Russian policy hereafter. Advice from Italy said that country would flatly recognize the soviet government and open an embassy at Moscow with a charge d'affaires temporarily at the head of it. Count De La Torretta was said to have been selected as the Italian minister to Russia.

BRITAIN'S POLICY

Britain's policy, already being carried into effect, is resumption of commercial relations with Russia as soon as peace is restored, and recognition of the Soviet government under certain conditions to which Moscow must agree.

France, according to diplomatic advice received here Saturday night is going right ahead with its policy of backing up the Wrangel anti-Bolshevik regime in the Crimea. General Wrangel, encouraged by this, has started an offensive and defeated the Bolshevik 18th army, taking 4,000 prisoners.

British labor's "council of action" remained in session here ready to dictate to "king, lords and commons." The "labor government"—as it has been dubbed, continued to threaten general strike if the British navy were used in a blockade of Russia. The laborites demanded peace be brought about as soon as possible and that Britain recognize the Soviets. As the labor policy appeared to be almost identical with the new British policy there was little fear of labor troubles.

END OF MEXICAN REVOLT SEEN

Peaceable Settlement of Lower California Row Believed Near.

CALIFORNIA, Calif.—Americans in close touch with affairs in Lower California Saturday saw added hope of peaceable settlement of differences between the Mexican federal government and Governor Cantu.

In official statements issued from Cantu headquarters at Mexicali, Governor Cantu, in conferring with an unnamed federal commissioner, the official statement said: "At the same time a complete statement of Cantu's position in his controversy with the federal government was given out."

Governor Cantu's retirement is not the principal point at issue, it was said.

"The governor is willing to act as best for the nation. The main question is one of postponement of national elections. Another vital issue is the matter of appointment of governors for the several states."

Governor Cantu's position is that the federal government has not the right to appoint governors of states without the consent of the people of the state.

Cantu's communique also denied reports that federal troops had landed at El Baril, Lower California, as reported by the Mexican consul at San Diego, California. Communication between the two points is impossible, it was said.

NEWEST "BIG BERTHA"

SHOOTS EIGHTY MILES

LONDON.—The test that a super "Big Bertha" is being built at Vickers's Sheffield works is made known.

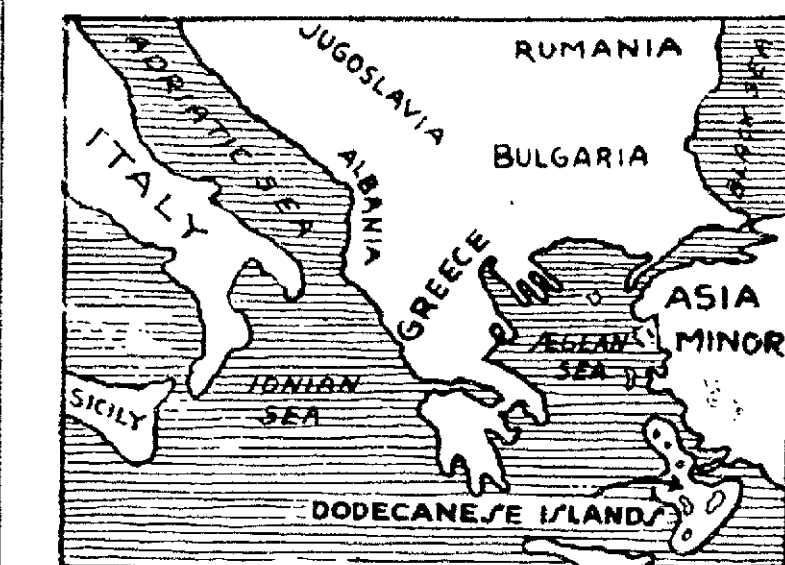

Its length is eighty feet (wire), a Daily Chronicle (correspondent), and it can throw an eight-inch shell between seventy and eighty miles.

In consequence of the extraordinarily high velocity of the projectiles the gun will need reloading at frequent intervals.

STRIKE IS ENDED

NEW YORK.—The strike of longshoremen which tied up shipping here for five months was declared off Saturday. The men will return to work on Monday, the union announced. Most of them have already gone back, shipping officials said.

TROUBLE BREWS BETWEEN ITALY AND GREECE OVER DODECANESE ISLANDS

Trouble is brewing between Italy and Greece over possession of the Dodecanese islands, which formerly belonged to Turkey. It appears that a secret treaty existed between the two allied countries whereby the islands were to be given to Italy by the terms of the peace treaty, but were then to be transferred to Greece. Italy does not now wish to stand by her bargain as regards Rhodes, the largest, most populous, and by far the most valuable island of the group.

Ohio Man Learns Of Large Estate Left Him In Canada

AKRON.—Captain Walter M. Price, custodian of the armory, has just been notified he is the only known heir to a Canadian estate valued at over $200,000.

Price was born in Earlville, Ohio, 43 years ago. He is married and the father of four children.

The estate is near Toronto. It consists of land and valuable buildings, Captain Price said. He said the estate was founded by his great-grandfather, who took a crown grant from the King when he emigrated to Canada.

$2 BOOST IS ASKED BY MINERS

Wage Demands Put Up to Operators at Cleveland Meeting.

OLIVELAND, O.—Speaking at the Saturday afternoon session of the joint scale conference between miners and operators of the central competitive field, John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America said that day workers in the bituminous fields must have higher wages in order to make a living on the present working time of the mines.

The mines, Lewis said, have been working only two, three and four days a week.

The present scale for day workers is $6. While it is not definitely known, it was understood that the demands of the miners placed before the joint scale committee were for a $2 per day increase.

Operators refused to comment Saturday evening on the demands of the miners and did not disclose what had been asked for or if any action was taken. It is known, however, that after the demands had been placed before the conference that it adjourned until Monday. Operators will meet by themselves on that day and consider the miners' proposal, it is believed.

RIOT BREAKS OUT

Soldiers Are Attacked By Armed Men in Ireland.

DUBLIN.—Rioting broke out here Saturday night when a crowd of armed men hoarded street cars to seek out soldiers. The soldiers fought back in hand to hand fray.

Armored cars appeared and, firing volleys over the heads of the crowd dispersed it. It later reassembled, however, but without further trouble.

Twenty bags of official mail from government headquarters in London and addressed to Dublin Castle and the vice-regal lodge were captured by the Sinn Feins Saturday night. It was announced Saturday night.

Thirty armored and two other unarmored vans were unmolested.

SWEARS TO FIGHT TO LAST DITCH

Citizens Arm Themselves in Defense of Polish Capital.

RUSSIAN GUNS CIRCLE CITY

More Nearby Towns Captured in Bolshevik Sweep.

WARSAW.—While the Bolsheviks pushed in north and south of Warsaw Saturday in an attempt to surround this city, the Polish and Russian armistice delegations met at Minsk, and thousands of civilians, armed with all sorts of weapons, marched out to defend their capital to the end.

The rumble of Russia's artillery was audible here Saturday whenever the wind came from the northeast, where the enemy's lines are closest. There was fear, that Bolshevik shells would begin dropping into the city at any time.

News from the front was but fragmentary, and there seemed to be no very definite idea of where the opposing armies were. No attempt was made to suppress the news of Polish reverses. Great throngs of civilians gathered in the public squares, with whatever weapons they could get, and took solemn oaths to defend the city to the death. Then they marched out over the roads toward the sound of cannonading.

The latest reports were that the reds had taken Bzhan, Vengrow and Lukoff, which are on the east of Warsaw 40 to 60 miles distance. These towns were given up by the Poles in accordance with their plan of gradual retirement to better positions. On the northeast and south the Bolsheviks were reported much nearer. Their vanguard was reported by aviators to be only 50 miles from the northern suburbs.

The most disquieting reports were of Polish Soviets being formed behind the Bolshevik lines. As fast as the Bolsheviks take territory they sovietize it, according to this information, so that even if they are driven back they will leave the seeds of communism planted in their wake.

TRUE NEWS AWAITED

Official advice from the armistice commission were eagerly awaited. It was expected they would soon be coming in by wireless. At the war office the impression prevailed that the reds would by some subterfuge delay the negotiations so they could continue advancing on Warsaw. Trotsky wants to dictate peace in this city, government officials believe.

President Pilsudski and other officials of the government were heavily guarded against assassins Saturday. Threats against Pilsudski's life have been received. He has prepared for flight and probably will depart if the Bolshevik advance keeps up. The mass of the people have no faith in the government or in the entente and feel that if they are to be saved from the Bolsheviks they must save themselves.

RAILWAY TAKEN BY REDS

KOENIGSBURG, East Prussia.—Reports reaching here say the Soldau-Lauenburg railway across the southern end of the Danzig "Corridor" from Poland to the free port of Danzig is in the hands of the "reds."

Cossacks have attacked Modlin, twenty-five miles from Warsaw, the reports asserted.

TRUE PROSPECTS GLOOMY

Prospects for an armistice between the Poles and the Bolsheviks "are not rosy," following Saturday's conferences according to a despatch received here by the Manchester Guardian's Warsaw correspondent.

The Poles plan to refuse to agree to partial disarmament, the despatch said.

PLOT AGAINST BRITAIN BARED

CONSTANTINOPLE.—A Bolshevik plot to destroy the British empire is expected to result soon in a holy war which will test to the utmost Britain's power in the Mohammedan portions of the dominions.

Details of the plan have come to the attention of British agents here, and steps are being taken to block it.

Sources close to Moscow have heard reports that two special commissions were formed there to direct the world-wide campaign to overthrow Britain.

The alleged plot, according to information obtained here, calls for a holy war to spread through Mohammedan portions of the empire.

CHARTER CHANGE ASKED

CINCINNATI.—A movement to amend the charter of Cincinnati at the November election to provide for a non-partisan ballot without party emblem in municipal elections, such as obtains in Cleveland, has been launched by the Citizens Committee.

TARIFF TO FORE, HARDING SAYS

One of the Campaign's Leading Issues, Senator Declares.

MARION, O.—A prediction that the tariff will be one of the foremost issues of the campaign was made by Senator Warren C. Harding here Saturday night. "Mark my word, this will be an issue," Harding said, discussing the tariff question. "People can smile now, but you will hear a lot of shouting about the tariff before this campaign is over."

Harding officially announced his acceptance of an invitation to speak at the Minnesota State Fair at the Twin Cities Wednesday, September 8. A labor day speech had been requested but Harding wants to discuss agricultural issues at the state fair and will make a labor day speech from the front porch here. He will travel to Minnesota in a regular sleeping car.

Elaborating on his forecast that the tariff is destined to be a leading issue, Harding continued:

"How can it be otherwise? Europe is bound to make every possible effort to rehabilitate the trade, there is only one way she can do this. We are the best buyers. America is the chief nation that offers attractive markets, outside of Japan and Spain. Japan with her imitative goods produces for herself. I don't know about Spain."

"I don't know whether I am in agreement with others on this but I favor a tariff commission. No congress can have all the information necessary as to differentials and rates. I regard a tariff commission as a necessary adjunct to a protective policy."

"I do not mean an old time prohibitive tariff but a tariff which protects American interests."

"Do you regard the present tariff commission as inefficient?" Harding was asked.

"I wouldn't say inefficient," he replied, "but it is not functioning."

WRANGLE SEEN AS BOLSHIEV

Cossack Commander Adopts Red Policy, Writer Says.

FRANCE CAN'T AID HIM MUCH

Points Out Serious Obstacles to Paris' Desires.

By J. W. T. MASON
NEW YORK.—French and British differences over the Russian situation will not be allowed to reach the breaking point. The two nations can pursue opposite policies as far as negotiations with the Bolsheviks are concerned without antagonizing each other.

The most serious obstacle to the French desire to assist General Wrangel is the absence of means by which material help can be extended. France is in no position to give money to the South Russians. Aid in the form of manpower might cause a second French revolution if disaster were to overtake the French forces. For this reason, French soldiers will not be sent in serious numbers to die in the Crimea. There remains only munitions. General Wrangel will doubtless receive a little help of this kind from France but that is all. It will not amount to much and in the end General Wrangel's help from France will be advice.

FRANCE GUESSES WRONG

The Paris government, however, has hitherto been unfortunate in its advice on Russian affairs. It has consistently guessed wrong about Russia from the time of the start of the Bolshevik revolution, when France opposed the Bolsheviks, after the war, and the Bolsheviks took the French money and made peace with Germany. Neither France nor any other power knows what General Wrangel will do if he is successful in South Russia. His first action thus far has been Bolshevik in its disregard for property rights. He has ignored the peasants that they can adopt whatever policy they please concerning the land they have seized without payment. This does not indicate any serious differences between the economic and moral theories of the Bolsheviks and General Wrangel.

WRANGLE NOT STATESMAN

France issues encouragement to the South Russian armies, however, because the Moscow Soviet has refused to pledge itself in acceptable form to recognize Russia's debt. General Wrangel has undoubtedly given full assurances on this point to France. But the pledges of an obscure commander of Cossacks concerning the fast financial responsibilities of Russia are of questionable value. General Wrangel is a cavalry leader, not a statesman. France is taking as much risk in relying on him as the government of M. Clemenceau did when it financed the Ukrainian separatists.

There being no possibility that France's aid to General Wrangel can have a serious practical effect on his operations, little material harm will come of the present Anglo-French differences. For the moment, the Wrangel forces are able to hold their own in the South. But this is only because the main Soviet armies are engaged against Poland. Once a Russian-Polish peace is established, there should be no difficulty on the part of the Soviet generals in gaining complete control of the South.

Wrangel's strength is far less than Poland's and Poland has just been crumpled by the Russians. Once Wrangel disappears from the scene, the time will come to recognize peace in Russia. Thereafter the Russian people will be able to see the insufficiency of Soviet rule in a clear light and Bolshevism will doubtless disappear in form or substance.

They were awarded $2682 rebate.

"ROBBED" MAN IS HELD BY POLICE

Complainant Sold Liquor, is the Charge Made.

Carl Phillips, 31, 1158 Forest-ave is in the city prison charged with selling intoxicating liquor according to police, as a result of making an alleged report Saturday night that he had been robbed.

Captain Frank Grant said Phillips called upon the station Saturday night and reported two colored men driving toward the city in a buggy had robbed him. Police immediately made a search, according to Grant, and the two men, John Brown, 35, 130 E. Cole-st and Thomas Tolliver, 35, 130 S. Cole-st, were arrested by Plainclothesmen Cismenbury and Kipker.

When Phillips identified Tolliver at the police station as one of the two men who had robbed him earlier in the evening Tolliver made a full confession, police declared in which he said he had purchased a half pint of corn liquor from Phillips for $2.50. He also named Sam Short, 424 E. Second-st as the man who was with him in the buggy and purchased a pint of liquor for $5. Short corroborated the story.

Police are holding liquor taken from the two men as evidence.

HELD FOR FIGHTING

Three arrests were made by police Saturday night at 11 o'clock in a free-for-all fight at Main and Wayne-sts.

The men gave their names as George Kilian, 50, 412 E. Pearl-st, A. C. Barker, 25, Akron, and Fred Wilson, 25, 1243 Kildare-ave.

Kilian and Barker were released on bonds of $15 each.

past. Recognizing the unrest of the hour and the disposition of the people to shake themselves free from the conditions that surround them during the vexing time of war, they have argued that the electorate would turn to the party not in power. In the first place they have nominated one of their own number for president and they have attempted to fasten upon rank and file of the party their creed of hate and intrigue.

DIVIDED AUTHORITY

"They discuss plural government with self-evident candor. Their frankness is to be commended, because their purpose by this question is to make executive administration not the affair of the responsible president himself, but of the rings that surround him. Senatorial policy has so often run counter to the general welfare that details are not necessary.

"I recognize that the people are restless; that their conveniences have been interfered with by the war and that emergency taxes have been oppressive, but my message to the people of the republic is this:

"Stop, look and listen before you step. Reflect upon certain consequences of a senatorial oligarchy taking over the presidency and depriving it of the characteristics of leadership which our constitutions intended.

"I believe in the constitution of the United States and the preservation of divided authority between the three co-ordinate branches, as our fathers intended, each maintaining its importance but not exceeding its function. I believe in evolution rather than revolution and I offer to the country as the statutory expression of progress in government, our record of six years in Ohio."

Cox then referred to the Ohio workmen's compensation act, mothers' pensions, rural school code, modern devices to transform country life, simplification of judicial practices and the spirit of the new Ohio constitution.

CHERISHED ON HIS WAY

All along the motor route from Columbus to Wheeling, W. Va., little groups of people gathered to cheer Cox on his way. Many houses were decorated with flags, and here and there in windows of Republican homes were large pictures of Harding.

At Zanesville and Cambridge probably 1,000 people heard the speech, while a crowd of 500 was waiting at St. Clairsville. He stopped to eat a big chicken dinner at a little inn near Morristown. Reception committees in automobiles met the governor all along the way and piloted him to their towns.

With auto sirens screaming and bells ringing, the Democratic leaders brought him into Wheeling. A hand led Cox's car thru the main streets. He was introduced to the convention Saturday afternoon by Representative M. M. Nelly and the public Saturday night by Mayor Thomas. The trip back to Columbus will be made by motor Sunday.

BIG CROWD HEARS SPEECH

A crowd, estimated at from 10,000 to 15,000, heard Cox make an hour's speech Saturday night on the river front. Time and again it interrupted the candidate to applaud his short, sharp phrases of attack against Senator Harding and the Republican party.

The greatest demonstration came when Cox declared that he had "a cause that does not need to be panted up in a Marion front yard."

Explaining what he meant by progressive government, the governor recalled the achievements of the workmen's compensation law in Ohio.

"Harding led the fight against the law for the old day," he said, "I led the fight for it and the new day. I licked him by 100,000 votes."

Cox then quoted a statement which Harding made after the passage of the law several years ago. It read:

"The revolution has begun in Ohio. Ohio has passed into the control of the Socialists."

After Cox charged that millions were being raised by the Republicans, he asked the crowd "what for?"

"To beat Jimmy Cox," some one shouted.

"Boys, they haven't produced enough yet," he replied.

ANOTHER SCARCITY! —IN ARTISTS' MODELS

TOKYO.—Art alone, foreign lines in Japan is having a hard struggle because of the difficulty in securing models. Japanese girls having a marked dislike to posing in the nude.

An art school which recently spent considerable money advertising for models, received only seven answers, in spite of the fact that the work is not hard and the pay, ranging from $5 to 100 yen a month, considered very high in comparison to wages paid in other lines of work.

This condition led an enterprising young man to make a specialty of collecting models, with the result that on a certain day he gathered together about ninety girls, and invited all the prominent painters and sculptors of Tokyo to attend and make their selections. Business was so brisk that the entire number was disposed of, even though it is believed that only about ten per cent of them will remain in the business.

BOY SCOUTS SEEK OWN CAMP

Chief Stallsmith Bases Desire On Success Thru Year.

Stirred by the success of the American Boy Scout encampment at Camp Buettner, recently closed, Scout Executive E. F. Stallsmith is advocating the acquisition of their own camp grounds by the Lima scouts. He expects to accomplish either thru purchase, option or gift.

Figures of the camp this year on which the Lima executive bases his claims of phenomenal success, include the large attendance. Thirty percent of the entire enrollment of the scouts in Lima attended the camp. This, he declares is far above the average. The present outlook, according to the local executive, is that the membership will be doubled before the 1921 encampment.

Plans for the coming year include resumption of the monthly scoutmasters' meetings in September, it was announced Saturday. Saturday afternoons will be devoted to holding tests for scouts. The location of these test camps will be announced later.

STOCK SELLING THRU BROKERS

The stock is handled by the large Chicago brokerage house of L. M. Bach & Co. who just opened the books for subscriptions. They were instructed by M. Bernstein, President of the Gramm-Bernstein Motor Truck Corporation, to accept small as well as large orders for stock.

"An erroneous report began to circulate that we would sell our shares only in large blocks," stated Mr. Bernstein, "That is something we want to correct at once. We want the Gramm-Bernstein certificates to be placed in the hands of as many people as possible to reach within the limited time set for the distribution of the stock issue."

"The bigger the Gramm-Bernstein family of stock holders will be the better we'll like it. All of them will be a booster for the Gramm-Bernstein trucks. Every time we get a stock holder to go thru our plant or to use one of our motor trucks we add an enthusiastic animated walking and talking advertisement to our organization. MONEY FOR EXPANSION.

PURPORTS

"The capital that will be secured thru the sale of the new stock issue will be used for the expansion of the business. The sale of Gramm-Bernstein trucks is growing phenomenally and the market for this sturdy performer is expanding at a tremendous pace."

Great impetus to the Gramm-Bernstein business was given by the development of good roads in many states. Greater business still is sure to follow just as soon as the additional projected roads are built. Already $1,300,000,000 has been appropriated for road construction and many more millions will be set aside for this purpose. It is the desire of the officers of Lima's great motor truck corporation to expand their facilities to meet the constantly increasing demand for the Gramm-Bernstein motor trucks.

GREAT DEMAND FOR TRUCKS
"We simply can't keep up with orders," explained Mr. Bernstein. "We have been oversold right along. Our truck performs the most exacting duty wherever it is put to work. People everywhere know the dependable joy inspiring service of the Gramm-Bernstein. We are getting orders from every state in the union—and from China, Japan, England, France and fourteen other European countries."

"We can't increase our facilities too soon. We are working on our new plans every day, advancing our progress just as rapidly as conservative and careful business judgment will permit. The money we are now raising will go entirely towards the expansion of our business. We are equipped now to turn out about 4,800 motor trucks per year. We want to at least double this output in a comparatively short time. There is no better investment to-day. It is my firm conviction, than the stock of the Gramm-Bernstein Motor Truck Corporation. I am advising all my friends to invest in it can in this stock—and invest it at once."

Party Folks Love it Less and Less as Time Passes

STATE CONVENTION TUESDAY

State G. O. P. Churn Upset Before Butter Was Made

(By J. W. Fisher.)
Peculiar circumstances arise from political primaries and regular elections; conditions develop that are disturbing and unexpected, to say the least. And the primary held last week, on Tuesday, was no exception to the general rule. For instance, the defeat of Ralph C. Flindley by former Mayor Harry L. Davis, of Cleveland, for the Republican nomination for Governor of Ohio has completely disconcerted the G. O. P. state organization.

The campaign for the November election was all framed up for Cole. He is a well known "dry." It was confidently expected that he would be nominated and the state organization was ready to attack Vic Donahay, the Democratic candidate, on the grounds that Donahay was not a "dry" as Cole. The fact that Davis is a liberal of the most pronounced type, has the party fixers in a hole. Now they don't know where to begin their campaign attack. The Republican voters, in favoring Davis over Cole, have taken all the "thunder" out of the hands of the party leaders they expected to use against Donahay. Vic has taken note of the fact that Republican plans have gone awry, and quite properly he isn't at all surprised.

Since these "fule" junk and fill of the G. O. P., now known as the G. O. P. (Old Guard Party) have gone and upset the churn before the butter was made, there is a real disturbance in the state camp. As they scan the primary returns, there is a feeling of uneasiness in the "inards" of the fellows who sit on the situation down at the state capital and tell the "boys" down the line just who the cards are stacked for. There was a hitch somewhere along the line this year. Just how the bosses are going to attune themselves to the situation that has resulted from the primary vote is difficult to state just now. However, trust them to wiggle out of the situation somehow, partially at least.

The renomination of Congressman E. F. Welty of this city by the Democrats of the 4th district in such a decisive manner over a field of three other candidates, all capable men and good vote getters, was one of the unexpected results of the primary election. The most optimistic of the supporters of Congressman Welty felt that an effort to break established precedent in this district and accord a congressman a third-time nomination was a thing that would be very difficult to do, but the very fact that so many candidates were out after Ben's "scalp" helped the present Representative to attain his ambition.

Strategic campaign methods adopted by the two candidates from Darke-co likewise helped in no small degree to make more votes for the present congressman. An eleven-hour roorback sprung in Darke-co too late to be refuted in the newspapers, that Welty had realized the futility of hoping to secure a third-time nomination and had withdrawn from the race, also aided his cause when the voters became acquainted with the deception that had been practiced.

Circulars were hurriedly printed and sent out over Darke and other counties in the district, branding the statement as being false. Realizing that sort of methods to break down the organization of a candidate, the voters of the district rallied to Welty's support stronger than might probably have otherwise been the case.

Whoever it was pulled off that stunt in Darke-co certainly staged a boner. And in the last analysis Welty was aided instead of being injured. There were other things that contributed to Ben's renomination. When he went to congress, he set about ascertaining what the people of his district wanted him to do in their behalf and he set about doing it. Ben has been in earnest in his efforts in behalf of a ship canal and other movements and his constituents believed in him. Saying nothing to the disparagement of the other capable gentlemen who tried to pry Ben loose from his Washington job, the Democratic voters voted their disapproval of his activity in their behalf in such a decisive manner that there is no question about who they desired to have run for congress in November on their party ticket.

Congressman Welty has reason to and does feel mighty proud of the endorsement he received from the voters of his party.

Borrowing the music of the refrain the Kiwanians sing at the ball game about Rotary, the politicians use these words: "Old primary system ain't what it used to be."

In fact, the primary system never was exactly popular with the voters of Ohio, save and except in anticipation. It reminds one of the fellow who became obsessed years ago when the bicycle first came into use, with the idea that all he needed to complete his happiness was the ownership of one of the new-fangled things on two wheels. He put up the coin, became the owner of one of them and in telling of his experience later on, said: "There is more in anticipation than in realization."

Years ago, when the primary system was first suggested, most everybody caught the popular fancy that it would prove to be a blanket panacea for all our political ills; that only sincere candidates could be nominated under the beneficent plan and sinners would be forced to take to the tall and uncut. This comment doesn't mean to inter that undesirable always get the nominations under the new method of choosing; nothing of the sort, but it is a clench that generally speaking, there are more sora spots after a primary election than there ever were when the delegate convention was in vogue.

From all over the state comes a yell against the primary every time it is employed for the purpose of choosing men to fill up the tickets.

Such a small percentage of the rank and file of the voters advantage it that the blamed thing is about as popular as an orange colored necktie at an Irish picnic. Opposition to it is taking stronger form from time to time and there remains little doubt but that the legislature that will have the courage to bury it will erect for itself a monument long enduring in the estimation of old vox populi.

The reason isn't exactly apparent, but it is a fact nevertheless that the voters never have taken over-kinde to the primary. And, judging from the past, it probably never will. Not only the politicians give evidence of a deep-rooted desire to be chief mourners in the obsequies that will witness the consigning of the primary system to its last resting place. There are many others.

The formal opening of the Ohio campaign comes on Tuesday August 17, with the Democratic state convention at Columbus, when the nominations made in the primary election last Tuesday will be ratified, a platform adopted and plan, perfected for the protection of the claims of the Party of the People.

Governor James M. Cox, candidate for President, will address the convention. Formalities having been laid aside, the fighting Governor will handle the situation without gloves, and will hit straight from the shoulder. While this will not be the first time his nomination, nevertheless it will be his first real stump speech and is being awaited with no small measure of interest.

A Victor Donahay, candidate for Governor, will deliver his first speech of the state campaign. This will be what might properly be termed a double-barreled program and is expected to attract large crowds to Columbus. Leaders plan to make it a state-wide rally of Democratic hosts with bands, street parade, singing and all the abundant enthusiasm that was a prime feature of the pilgrimage to San Francisco made by the Ohio booster organization in June and likewise at the notification ceremonies in Dayton.

A host of candidates for state congressional and county offices will be in attendance and every county in the state is expected to send a big delegation. The temporary officers are: A. M. Daugherty, Lancaster, chairman; L. L. Lamborn, Marion, secretary; S. E. Geddes, executive secretary; John E. Druggan, sergeant at arms; W. W. Durbin, John E. Druggan, lia. R. Pontius and W. J. Leonard, arrangement committee.

The convention will be called to order at 11 a. m. in Memorial hall in Columbus.

A platform, in harmony with the San Francisco pronouncement, Governor Cox's speech of acceptance and the views of A. V. Donahay, will be adopted. Senator Alden Benezette, National Chairman George White and other notables of the Democratic party will attend. It is believed that W. W. Durbin, father of F. W. Durbin of this city, will be chosen as chairman of the state campaign.

A political surprise, altogether unexpected and which has been the most pronounced bit of political news since the announcement was made Monday, is the withdrawal of Judge Kent W. Hughes from the Democratic ticket as one of the candidates for place on the supreme court bench of Ohio. Judge Hughes has no further explanation to make concerning his decision to remain on the court of appeals bench than if he should be elevated to the supreme bench, with its added responsibilities, he would be required to move to Columbus. He is merely domiciled here in a beautiful home, is resident among friends of many years standing and would rather sacrifice the higher honor that appeared to be within his grasp than to locate elsewhere, leaving the scenes of such splendid associations. As Judge Hughes says, it probably was quite difficult for him to come to a decision, but love for the city gave him the final word. The withdrawal of our fellow townsman leaves only one candidate, Daniel Cull. It therefore is up to the state central committee of the Democratic party to designate a successor to Judge Hughes in the ticket, which will be done in ample time before the election.

Under the laws of the state, Judge Hughes was not required to resign his position on the appeals court bench to seek nomination for the higher position in the judiciary and had he remained a candidate neither would he have been required to resign his present position before the election. In any event, should he have failed of election, he would still be qualified for the higher office or he could have declined to qualify and retain his present position, making an appointment for the position of supreme judge necessary.

The only motive back of the withdrawal of Judge Hughes is that which has been stated—his desire to continue a resident of Lima.

It is easy money for Judge F. C. Lorton, venerable jurist over in Auglaize-co, who has a walkaway, as twice, in the Democratic primary election for an "extra-term" term on the Common Pleas bench. He had opposition aplenty in the primary, but having landed a winner in the pre-election ballot battle, he is assured of another term, for the very good reason that the Republicans had no available timber for place on the primary ticket for nomination, to be pitted against him in November.

Judge Lorton had very little difficulty in disposing of R. B. Anderson and L. C. Hirsch, of Wapakoneta and St. Marys respectively and since there is no Republican nomination, the Auglaize-co honored and respected Judge will have no need of making another campaign.

There are but three Republican alternatives in Auglaize-co and these were actively engaged in chasing after other places in the primary. Richard F. Poesel, new Bremen attorney, was unopposed for nomination for Probate Judge; Karl Timmermeister, an attorney collector of Wapakoneta, had no opposition for the Republican nomination for prosecuting attorney and L. C. Brodbeck, St. Marys, Blacksona despoiled was busy chasing the senatorial nomination on the G. O. P. ticket. So now, unless Brodbeck is a loser in the senatorial race and "comes" as a candidate for common pleas judge by petition, there is "nothing to it" for Judge Lorton.

The Democrats over in Auglaize-co never were keen about permitting a Republican candidate for county office to gallop into authority without opposition; at least no such incident can now be recalled. But they came near doing it this time, when the Democratic primary ticket went to the voters without the name of a candidate for county coroner printed thereon. Apparently, the field was left free and open to Dr. W. S. Surkey, for the Republican candidate, in the election, but the Democratic laddy bucks got busy with their little lead pencils on primary day and by candle light in the voting booths wrote in the names of various meddles as their choice for the tail-end position on the party ticket in November. Dr. Chas. P. McKee of St. Marys received 31 votes, Dr. Sherb, Dr. P. C. Hunter 12 and Dr. R. C. Hunter of Wapakoneta 14. Dr. McKee has been declared the Democratic nominee.

Subdued whisperings featured the roundup of newly elected members of the Republican county central committee for a "big killing" that was to be staged Friday night at the O. O. P. headquarters, in the Holmes block, third floor, to be exact.

There was much burning up of perfectly good high priced gasoline and wear and tear on auto tires as the leaders of contending factions in the Republican party tore up the roads in the county and the pavements in the city in getting the word to their follower and later getting them to the scene of battle. So keen was the scrap that men were driven away from their work, to make sure that their vote would count.

The athletes were keen edged and there were strong arms back of them. Crowded into the diminutive rooms labeled "Republican Headquarters," the perishing committee men stood by their colors until the last shot was fired and the final Gale-Blowing-Hotter crowd came up smiling. The opposition was jam-packed, wallowed, knocked down and flattened by the juggernaut. The best they could do in an effort to wrest control of the party in the county from the old guard was 14 votes to 56 paraded by the standard-bearers.

In event of the election of Harry Davis of Cleveland as Governor, Carl Rowlands will be the "big nose" in Allen-co with the administration, for it was Rowlands who looked after Davis' interests in Allen, while the old guard was back of Cole. A refusal of the personnel of the executive committee chosen evidenced the fact that there are a few who were acceptable to both factions.

Young Republicans were given no chance that there is no chance of breaking down the old lines. Carl Rowlands, Mel Licht, R. R. Truhey, Harry Bentley, John Harley, Joe Kaufman, Dr. E. D. Sinks and others were gently laid away on the shelf, so far as participation in the councils of the party committee are concerned. Their offering of committee candidates was rejected emphatically. While the "war" was on, the benign countenances of McKinley, Hanna, Nash, Garfield, Harrison and others looked down on the bake-oven scene from picture frames on the wall, in disapproval. The situation and the temperature was so heated that even the walls exuded moisture. The "in-sureness" refused to acclaim: "The king is dead, long live the king!" The future is freighted with danger for the G. O. P. boys.

BERRY WINS OUT FOR SENATOR

Spencerville Man Cops Democratic Nomination.

State Senator Thomas M. Berry wins Democratic preferment in the primary election on Tuesday, August 10, over three other candidates. Six of the seven counties in the 32d senatorial district had reported primary results in this contest to the Board of Deputy State Supervisors of Election Saturday afternoon. The Paulding-co vote was still missing, but Berry was in the lead up to that point. Telephone communication late yesterday with the election board in Paulding disclosed that Berry had held his own fairly well in that county and that he emerges from the seven-county contest a winner by 147 votes over his next nearest competitor, Marker of Van Wert-co.

Berry received a total of 4319 votes in the district. Huber of Mercer-co 3363 and Marker of Van Wert-co 4172. Berry carried only one county, his home county of Allen, but such a large plurality that it made up for his losses elsewhere and landed him a winner. Berry was given 2005 in Allen-co, to 336 for Huber and 764 for Marker.

In the contest for the Republican nomination for state senator, 32d district, Shafer of Van Wert-co is apparently a winner by a landslide. With the figures from Paulding-co unavailable Saturday night, Shafer received in the other six counties, Allen, Auglaize, Defiance, Mercer, Van Wert and Williams, a total of 2207. Renollet of Paulding-co was given 1599. Samples of Van Wert 1503, and Brodbeck of Auglaize 157. With Renollet 608 behind Shafer in the six counties, he would be required to receive more than the total number of votes probable cast in Paulding-co to land him a winner.

JONATHAN A. WESTONER, ALLEN-CO PIONEER IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

Jonathan A. Westover, 76, died at his home, 818 Madison-ave, Saturday, after an illness from a complication of diseases. He had been confined to his bed 12 weeks and had been in poor health for years. He was a Civil war veteran and a member of Mart Armstrong post.

INCREASED WAGE FOR O. E. MEN

Means $300,000 Per Year on System, Officials Say

The new wage agreement between the Ohio Electric railway company and its trainmen will practically absorb the additional revenue which comes from the increase in city car fares in Lima, Vice President J. Harvey McClure declared Saturday. The company came to an agreement with its employees late Friday night increases were granted which McClure declares will mean $50,000 per year in the city of Lima alone. On the entire system he said the increase will amount to $300,000 per year.

The scale, according to the new agreement, which will go into effect August 15 is as follows: On city lines for conductors and motormen, first three months, 44 cents; next nine months, 45 cents; after one year, 47 cents per hour. Interurban, first three months, 46 cents; next nine months, 47 cents; after one year, 49 cents per hour, freight helper, 44 cents.

The scale in effect at the present time commences with 38 cents and hour for city trainmen, reaching the maximum of 47 cents at the commencement of the third year. On interurban trains the rate of pay commences at 41 cents an hour, reaching the maximum, 50 cents, at the beginning of the third year. Freight helpers receive 35 cents an hour.

Lima, O., Aug. 11, 1920.

Messrs. Quick & McBeth,

Lima, Ohio.

Dear Sir:—

With reference to the automatic oxidizer, which you are now selling, I wish to tell you about a test I put my Cadillac through.

On August 5, after having my Cadillac roadster equipped with one of your automatic oxidizers, I took Mr. M. Bowman, who is in charge of the service department of The Lima Cadillac Company, out for a test run. We went out on West Street road and through Elida, covering approximately 16½ miles on exactly one gallon of gasoline, a part of the road being covered with crushed stone, which as you know, is severe test on gasoline consumption.

I consider this a very gratifying performance as I could only get 11 miles per gallon before my car was equipped with the automatic oxidizer.

Yours sincerely,

A. W. WHEATLEY

Willis' Nomination Keeps Anti-Saloonists on Map

(BY MARY S.)

COLUMBUS — To Joseph, in Biblical story came the angel while he and Mary tarried in the land of the Egyptians with the message, "Arise and return unto Israel for they are dead that sought the young child's life." This text which has served for many a sermon, was aptly applied before the great convention of his party by the silver-tongued Nebraska when he referred to his discourse. So now it will be applied by this congressional champion of the better life in discussing what happened to the Ohio houses who sought the end of Prohibition. Willis.

Well, might James A. White, scolding orator, the returning, be an American. Right. In Anti-Saloon League is a candidate for a seat in Wayne R. Wheeler, just come from conference with Senator Warren C. Harding this morning. "For they are dead who sought the good young Governor's life." The League, it is no shining white star on the road and no redoubt to Willis in 1914 in the last communication doesn't say this all.

But one has to take in a lot of territory in "they" as applied to Willis. These words may have been consultation to Simon D. P. in Yellow Springs, who, in his dreams will see Willis' father and the patronage of Ohio, in right to November. But how will Maurice Maschke look? And Bud K. Hyman? How, indeed, when they see the salt of the earth, the old boys, peering on the good things they are to win.

Both the strategists of the Republican party and Vice President, Democratic candidate for Governor, are perfectly satisfied with the choice which was made by the Republicans in their candidate. Donahy says he likes it because former Mayor Harry L. Davis will emphasize the issue of a tax-saver versus a tax-spend, between one who wanted over more bonds issued when he was in office and one who constantly disapproved the creation of a great debt. Davis' administration in Cleveland, thus, becomes an object of interest to Ohio voters. Davis, too, said he wants to run against Donahy because it will give him an opportunity to show up "four-flushing" as he calls it. Davis will be on the stump much of the time. Donahy is little inclined to make much of a speaking effort for he is not an orator and knows it and he has little taste to spend his time in personal solicitation for votes. Of course, Davis also wants to get into the country community centers to show that he is a civilized being who knows how to use a rap-hin and is not the "roughneck" that people imagine him to be because of the stories circulated by his partisan enemies.

It may be assumed that Senator Warren C. Harding and Governor James M. Cox will do everything in their power to preserve the party alignments but these will be broken to some extent by action which they cannot control. Davis has his strength in the industrial centers in the primary and hopes to have it in the election, while the support of labor in the same localities has been one of the strong cards of Governor Cox. On the other hand, Harding appeals almost exclusively to the restfulness of the country where isolation from trouble is the standard remedy. In another sphere Donahy's appeal is to the taxation program that has ever appealed most recently to the farmer than to the dweller of whom only a surprisingly small proportion pay taxes. Davis' effort will be to cause a rising tide of partisan feeling in the country districts and if he can set away with it he will have a powerful victory.

Contrast between the canvasses of 1905 and 1920 has been noted by many observers, recalling that it was in that year that the Republican party had its last "wet" candidate for Governor. While Davis personally will seek to minimize the issue it is already in the canvass and will remain a prototype of Maschke and Hyman but whether this will help or hurt in the days of reaction from prohibition and reform is hard to tell. The public now is lethargic and is indifferent to ideals and high aspirations. That, at least, is the impression that has been given. But it is far too early to tell. The indications may be only of the surface. "The shafts of merriment and the darts of wit are still." As true now as ever.

It gave satisfaction to many voters that the conspiracy against Judge Harvey C. Smith failed and failed feebly. He won his nomination by almost a clean majority against all contenders, the negro candidate Harry Clay Smith, having the low vote. It was a demonstration that a candidate, unjustly assailed, can have a vindication by carrying the case directly to the voters. His opponent will be William D. Fulton, whom he has met and defeated in election booth and in legal tribunal. Fulton's race was quietly managed while his opponents greatly indulged themselves in print Fulton's name was known to the voters while his opponent's was not.

So far as Ohio national and legislative candidates are concerned it looks as if there was likely to be little gain for the liberal cause. Several L. V. and A. men meaning thereby advocates of light wines and beer went the pathway of oblivion. Among them were Paul Barker, Republican, in the Third Congressional District; John F. Mahler, in the Fourth; Newt Benson in the Fifth and it may take the official to determine whether Noygant, in the sixteenth, is not also a victim. The gain is in the Eleventh where Mel G. Underwood becomes the Democratic nominee and they swear he will be elected, a proposition that will be disputed by Congressman

Ricketts. The best indication as to the votes of others will be the vote on the new trade bill this fall. If it is badly nipped, there will be other floppers to help. Old Theodore E. Burton, coming back to life in Cleveland, may be liberal, too, for the old fellow never has thought much of this dry bone stuff.

There is not even curiosity as to the legislative candidates. No one seems to care who was named, excepting the new Governor to determine the policy. This is of course a curious reaction from the queer propaganda about one man rule. One may judge from certain manifestos that the American element will have a larger hold than ever in the new body. One may also assume that the lack of hilarious noises from the Anti-Saloon League is not certain about the matter, altho, heaven knows, the body may do nothing but refuse to pass the emergency bill and that is little enough. A party on a sore spot in government at this time is held unerringly by the editor of the Toledo Times when he charges to the false system of legislative representation much of the hue and cry against representative government as it was known to the fathers. The editor says that at present more than half of the members of legislation because they are not represented. In his own county each of the number represented by the other members is probably lower than 20,000 people. The editor calls this "unrepresentative" government and urges that it be corrected at once. The same sort of correction must be made, he says, in the national legislative body ere the people again too heavily at the existing mode of representation.

The remedy of initiative and referendum is scorned and the New York Democracy is soundly rapped for advocating it. Nevertheless, the subject is likely to be considered at the session of Ohio Democrats here next week, partly upon the thought that it there was a means of taking questions like the Peace Treaty to the people the Senate would not have taken a chance at popular rebuke but would have ratified it. One of the interesting features in the recurrence of attacks on the f. and it is that the assailants never tell what harm it has done. And the good is known of all men.

Every four years hope bubbles anew that the solid South is about to be broken. So Ohio Republicans experienced a thrill when Senator Harding's telegram to an old Ohioan, now a Texan, F. E. Scooby, was published a few days ago. But his a famous series of caricatures, "It doesn't mean anything." The answer is that here is a way to break the solid South—not in one election but maybe in half a dozen. But the party does not wish to attempt it, considering the price too high. There also there come attacks which make the southern hopes look black, as for instance the address made by Congressman S. D. Fess, of Yellow Springs, a few days ago. Congressmen sleep of Virginia, who had hopes of gains below Mason and Dixon's lines, went over the statement. Still it was intended for northern consumption and was not meant for exportation. "Something for Buncombe-co" as the sage of Yellow Springs might have said.

BEGG ON TICKET BY PETITION

Institute Speaker Candidate for Putnam-co Representative

COLUMBUS GROVE.—The name of John Begg, for more than 25 years lecturer at state farmers' institutes over Ohio, has been placed on the ballot in Putnam-co as nominee for representative by the Republican party.

No Republican candidates made the race at the primaries. A petition, circulated by George W. Core, the names of 60 persons, asking that Begg be placed on the ticket. "It would have been as easy to have gotten 500 signatures, as 60," Core said, "only they were not needed." Democrats and Republicans signed the petition.

Begg is the father of Congressman James Begg, Sandusky, representing that congressional district. He is a practical farmer and closely allied with farm interests. He has a wide acquaintance among farmers of the county.

The first knowledge he had of the circulation of the petition was when it was presented to him, telling him of his nomination for representative. He is a pillar in the Presbyterian church and superintendent of the Sunday school.

He has never sought office in Putnam-co, although he says he will make an effort to win the election. About 12 years ago he moved to Columbus Grove from his large farm in Monroe-twp, where he spent his life and reared a large family of children.

WILL OF LATE DR. A. L. JONES BRIEF DOCUMENT

The will of Dr. A. L. Jones, former health officer, who died suddenly a few weeks ago, has been filed to probate court and is probably one of the briefest documents in years.

The will occupies but a page of society note paper and was executed July 23, 1918. The document was written by Probate Judge W. C. Becker, a warm personal friend of the doctor, and Mrs. Becker and W. S. Shepard signed as witnesses.

By the terms of the will, all the property is given to the widow, Mrs. Harriet A. Jones, 1241 Lakewood-ave and she is named executrix of the will.

GROVER DREW ENTERS PLEA OF NOT GUILTY

Grover Drew, 33, brought back from Chicago Thursday to answer to an indictment charging forgery, was arraigned in court Saturday. Drew pleaded not guilty.

Because all juries have been dispensed with during the summer, the trial date was not set. Drew was held in jail under a bond of $300. He had just finished a sentence in the workhouse in Chicago when brought here by Deputy Sheriff Clarence J. Fraunfelder.

HARROD PROPERTY SOLD ON THE THIRD ATTEMPT

The third time was the charm in the sale of the property at Harrod Saturday, which had been offered in public auction twice previously to satisfy the court action of Tella Whitte against Rollie McCarty and others.

The property consisted of a house and lot and was appraised at $500. When unable to make sale after the second trial, Sheriff Charles W. Baxter secured an order from the court to sell the property below two-thirds of its appraised value, as allowed by law.

Jacob Cotner was the purchaser. The amount received, $200, will hardly pay court costs and attorney fees in the case, providing the heirs little funds from the sale.

Are You Only Half Alive or Would You Register 100% On This Chart of Health?

THE TEST THAT TELLS
HOW SOME MEN KEEP STRONG AND VIGOROUS WHILE OTHERS BECOME WEAKENED AND RUN-DOWN

Look at the above chart and decide for yourself where you would stand if put to this test. Science now knows that your strength, energy and physical development may depend largely upon the quantity of life-giving vitamins in your system. The artist's conception of a device such as is pictured above might well illustrate the vast difference you may make in your power and appearance by getting plenty of vitamins into your body. Dr. Rudolph A. Balthasar, a former Eastern University and Hospital Physician, explains below why there can be no fullness of health and vitality without life-giving VITAMINES and tells you how to get VITAMINES IN VITAMON.

New York (Special).—In a recent discussion by a famous Health Commissioner John J. Rudolph, M. D., late of New York Hospital Staff and a Graduate of the University of Baltimore, he said: "When you see a man contented to merely 'hold a job'—a man who has no other interest than remaining in his own rut—who is perfectly satisfied with what comes in his pay envelope every week, and is willing to go on in the same way without ever attempting to improve his condition, he either has a poor appetite or else he is not getting the proper nourishment out of what he eats to build health and strength. Nature puts in certain raw foods a vital life-giving substance which scientists have given the name vitamins."

If you were asked "What are vitamins?" I should say: "They are life-giving substances which are powerfully effective in building up your body and giving you strength and beauty to your face and skin. They are the very foods which do contain vitamins, you would probably not get enough of them to do you much good, for present methods of preparation and cooking rob these food of their vitamins before they reach our tables. As a result you fail to get enough strength to have provided for the express purposes of building vigorous health, keen mentality and great physical power. No matter how many tonics, oranges or other preparations you may have taken with the hope of building yourself up, the fact that you are still

If after using Vitamon you are not entirely satisfied with the results and are not convinced that it has been worth to you far more than you paid for it, the trial will cost you absolutely nothing. "WILFUL TWELVE" LOSING OUT

One by One Senators Who Opposed Wilson Are Retired

REPUBLICANS SHIFT PLANS

G. O. P. Leaders Extract Comfort From Primary Outcome

WASHINGTON, August 14.—Washington opinion on the results of the Ohio primaries last Tuesday was divided, comment in many instances being influenced by the partisan views of the person who was doing the talking. But the consensus of opinion seemed to be that the Republicans had profited most in the division of the spoils, and that the outcome as a whole was more favorable to Senator Warren G. Harding than to his Democratic opponent, Governor James M. Cox.

Almost without exception, Republican leaders here regarded the nominations of former Mayor Harry Davis of Cleveland for Governor and former Governor Frank B. Willis for United States Senator as the most formidable combination that could have been effected, and had the decision been left to Senator Harding and his national campaign managers. Personal preferences, of course, did not enter into this observation which was based solely on party expediency.

The views of the party leaders followed very much the line of reasoning. Davis, as a liberal, drew the bulk of his support from the large cities. Willis, a radical dry, as usual made his best showing in the rural districts. The two elements in the party organization behind their respective candidacies shared honors equally in the two major contests, thereby bringing about a situation conducive to party harmony. The two candidates and their followers now are joined in a common cause, to win. The equilibrium between the wets and the dries was maintained with a combination of their forces more likely than if one or the other had triumphed in both contests.

Republican leaders here, and Democrats also, who are familiar with the course of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League in former campaigns agree that there is little doubt but that the leaders of that organization will support Davis against Vio Donahay, notwithstanding the fact that Donahay has been a consistent dry. They will be so eager to elect Willis to the Senate that they will back Davis in spite of his liberal tendencies in return for assurances of support for Willis from wet Republicans in the cities. Such a combination, harmoniously welded, will, in the opinion of Republicans here, be a strong assistance to Senator Harding, even though the national and state tickets will be printed on separate ballots.

On the other hand, the Democrats, while recognizing that the Davis-Willis combination may be hard to beat, refuse to admit that the situation has any element of danger to the success of the Democratic national ticket in Ohio this year. They look upon the defeat of Walter F. Brown and Judge R. M. Wanamaker for the Senatorship as further notice to the Progressive Republicans that the Progressive element is not to be recognized in the national campaign this year. The prediction is made that thousands of former Progressives will turn to Governor Cox as the candidate representing their ideals regardless of whether their erstwhile leaders remain loyal to the Harding candidacy or not. Governor Cox's personal popularity, his progressive record as Governor, and his unequivocal stand for the League of Nations they assert, will carry him through to victory in his home state.

The close race between W. A. Julian of Cincinnati and Judge A. E. O'Neill of Akron for the Democratic Senatorial nomination was a big surprise to political leaders of both parties in Washington. For weeks reports have been coming from Ohio that the contest was a walkover for Julian, the state organization candidate, but the result has proven that there was too much shouting, and not enough real effort, expended in his behalf. The Republican newspapers have seized upon this unexpected vote for O'Neill as a clean vote against Governor Cox, inasmuch as the Governor was a supporter of Julian, and also a protest against the League of Nations. Democrats, on the other hand, regard the result as an indictment against the state organization, which either was careless or lacks influence with the rank and file of the party throughout the state.

At any rate, Governor Cox will not have the assistance from the state ticket that his opponent will receive, from all indications. Both Davis and Willis are seasoned campaigners, while Donahay will have to bear the brunt of the campaign for the Democratic state ticket. None of his associates are credited with any great measure of strength, though a few of them have run before. Therefore, as Democrats here view it, party success in Ohio this year will depend largely on the personal popularity and official records of Governor Cox and State Auditor Donahay.

There was elation in Congressional circles, because the majority of the sitting members from Ohio were re-nominated, though several had opposition. At the time this is written, only two, Representatives Henry I. Emerson, Republican, and John J. Babka, Democrat, both of Cleveland, appear to have been defeated, though more complete returns may show others to have been unsuccessful. The return of former United States Senator Theodore Burton to politics as a member of the House of Representatives is regarded as an augury for the election of a higher class of men to that body than has hitherto prevailed in both parties. His district, being overwhelmingly Republican, his election is practically assured.

Dispatches from Marion this week presage further changes in the announced policies to govern the Republican campaign. There were strong hints that the "front porch" campaign of Senator Harding would be greatly modified, altho, for the present, it is said that the Senator will visit only the large cities in different sections of the country at periodic intervals. The opinion prevails here that before October 1, he will have decided to undertake a speechmaking tour to offset the speaking campaign of Governor Cox, which is planned to take him into every section of the country. Another change noted was in the announcement of Chairman Willis that President Wilson and his policies would be one of the principal issues on the campaign. At the outset of the campaign, the Republican leaders announced that the League of Nations as the chief issue in this campaign. Governor Cox having uttered the four words in his speech of acceptance that stated in position, "I favor going in," the Republicans now seem to be shifting their ground from a referendum on the League to a referendum on President Wilson. Such a plan is interpreted by the Democratic leaders as an attempt to steer clear of the issues of 1920, in which, they maintain, the voters are most interested.

The recent increase in passenger and Pullman rates authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission has done much to change the character of Senator Harding's campaign. It is believed. To successfully carry on a "front porch" campaign, delegations must travel to the home of the nominee to hear the issues of the campaign discussed and to give the nominee an opportunity to set forth his views for national wide consumption. This involves expense to the individuals who make the trip and in these days of high cost, the new rates of travel are almost prohibitive to the ordinary citizen. As a result, Senator Harding likely will have to go to the people with his messages or else prosecute a campaign devoid of speech-making.

The defeat of Senator W. F. Kirby of Arkansas for re-nomination last Tuesday by Representative T. H. Caraway marks the passing of another of the Democratic Senators included in the group characterized by President Wilson as the "wilful twelve" just prior to America's entry into the world war. His opponent based his campaign against Senator Kirby on the latter's opposition to the President during the early period of the war. One by one the Democrats in that group have been retired to private life to be succeeded by men who have been loyal administration supporters. Just the week before Senator Thomas P. Gore of Oklahoma went down to defeat before Representative Scott Ferris, whose record in the House was one of consistent and enthusiastic support of President Wilson and his policies.

Ohio furnished one candidate during the recent primary who was his own bill poster. "All bills and lithograph work posted by the candidate personally" reads one sentence in the report of receipts and expenditures received this week by the clerk of the Senate from Jack Paul Walker, of Akron, one of the defeated candidates for the Republican nomination for United States Senator. It may have been that Walker was so busy with his bill posting that he was unable to send his statement in time to comply with the law, but in that respect he was no different than a score or more other Congressional candidates in Ohio who hired assistants to look after their publicity matter. Walker reported no contributions and expenditures of $647.82. The other Akron candidate for the Senatorship, Judge A. F. O'Neill, reported that he expended $279.75 in his race, principally for printing and advertising.

Among Ohio visitors to Washington this week was Mrs. Maude Murray Miller, of Columbus, prominent suffragist and Democratic leader. She came here to consult with officials of the women's bureau of the Democratic National Committee. Mrs. Miller agreed to stump the states where women have the vote for Cox and Roosevelt after she has completed a reorganization of the Democratic Women's Council of Franklin county, of which she is president.

"The women will be a factor of tremendous importance in this year's election," said Mrs. Miller. "Regardless of whether or not the Federal suffrage amendment is ratified, approximately 17,000,000 women will vote under state suffrage laws for Presidential electors. I am confident that Governor Cox will be elected, and with the aid of the women, but there is a lot of work to be done."

Mrs. Miller left here for New York where she said good-bye to her son who sailed Saturday for Ruda-Pest to enter the diplomatic service.

On August 20, all Ohio postal employees who have reached the age of retirement under the provisions of the new Federal retirement law will be retired from the service. There may be a few exceptions, but the policy of the Postoffice Department is to make a clean sweep of veteran employees who have reached the age limit, tho. The Postmaster General has authority under the law to continue for two years those employees whom he considers competent for further service. This means that railway mail employees who have reached the age of 62 years and other postal employees who are 65 years old or older will be retired. Senator James E. Watson of Indiana has been making an unsuccessful fight for the retention of several veteran Indiana postal employees and has announced that he will introduce an amendment to the law providing for the reinstatement of men who are competent and willing to serve the two years following retirement age.

RECORD YIELD OF OATS CLAIMED BY SHAWNEE-TP.

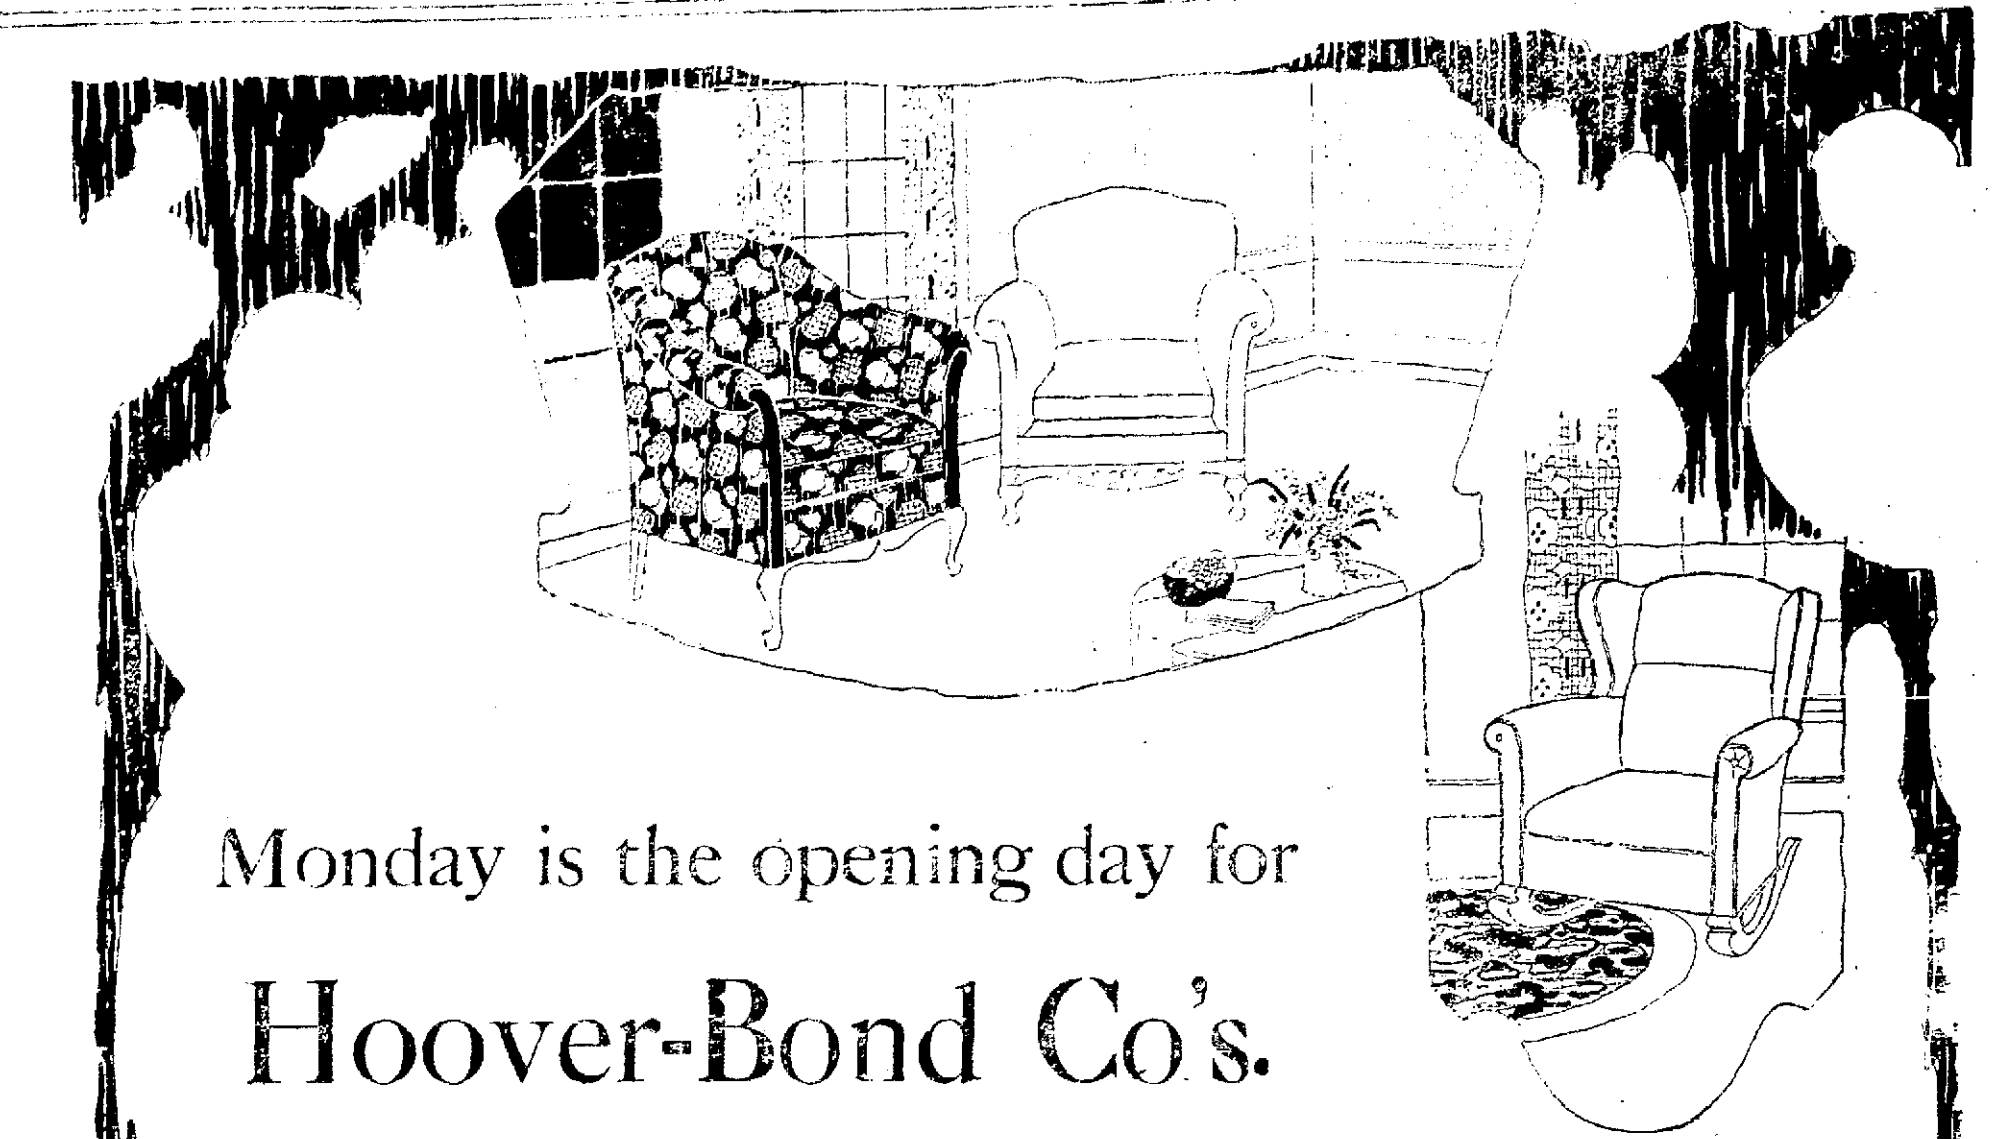

Anglia-tp claims the banner for the record amount of oats threshed from an acre of land.

Louis Hudon, who lives on the G. F. Ebbert farm in that township, threshed 86 1/2 bushels of oats from 13 acres of ground. This is a fraction of more than 86 bushels of oats to the acre.

While the normal yield, according to Farm Agent Vanatta, in Allen county is from 30 to 50 bushels to the acre, Mr. Hudon nearly doubled that with his crop. He used the Big Farm brand of oats at sowing.

GROVER CASE IS A MYSTERY

Pretty Young Lima Actress Improving in New York

The question of whether or not Blanche Grover, pretty 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Grover, 738 1-2 W. Wayne-st., was the victim of poisoning when found unconscious in a New York hotel Friday, remains a mystery so far as friends and relatives in Lima are concerned.

Telegrams sent to the Bellevue hospital by the girl's parents, requesting further facts brought only the information that Miss Blanche was improving.

Telegraphic dispatches from New York declare that police are still searching for a man who is reported to have called Miss Grover over the phone Friday morning, but failed to get her, thus bringing about the discovery of her condition.

Mrs. Grover, the girl's mother, was firm in her belief Saturday morning that the girl was the victim of a chronic attack of acute indigestion. Her faith expressed Friday in her daughter remained unshaken.

Blanche, as far as the mother could learn, had apparently gone to New York to accept a position with a movie concern as an actress. The girl is a beautiful gifted actress, having been on the vaudeville stage during the winter of 1919-20. Numerous movie offers in the past couple years, her mother declared, looked very promising and it is possible that she embraced an opportunity and went to New York to accept a movie position.

Mrs. Grover, declared Saturday morning that she knew nothing of a "sealed letter" addressed to her that was supposed to have been found among the girl's possessions when police searched her room in the New York hotel.

JUDGES TO ACCUSTOM SELVES TO JURYWOMEN

LONDON. — "Ladies and gentlemen of the jury"

That's what the learned judges are practising to say in their spare moments, for women voters are now to be empanelled for the jury, and his lordship must accustom his tongue to the new phraseology.

The question whether women will prove successful jurors, whether they will be able to sift evidence and to formulate an impartial opinion is one that is agitating many untried criminals.

A woman law-student who has had considerable experience of a semi-judicial nature on public bodies declares that women's aid in the solution of law problems will be invaluable.

GARFORD TO PROTEST GAME ON A BITTER'S DECISION

DEISEL WEMMER went back into the leadership of the Industrial League Saturday afternoon after breaking a tie with Garford by means of the game between the two contesting teams being forfeited to the victors at the end of five and one third innings.

Members of the Garford team declared that the game would be protested at the next meeting of the commission that governs the Industrial League activities.

The forfeiture followed a decision rendered by Empire Cook at second base in the inning when Costello, Garford fielder, was declared out by Empire Cook who claimed that he interfered with an attempt on the part of the Deisel Wemmer shortstop to field a ball.

Costello claims that the alleged interference was not intentional and that it could not have been helped. The play resulted as Costello was returning to second from between second and third while Pebleman the cinchman pitcher attempted to throw him out. Costello claims that he could not have run away from the shortstop without having stepped off the base line. The game will be protested upon this statement.

The Garford team is said to have refused to continue the game and allowed Cook's decision to stand. They walked off the field and Cook declared the game forfeited.

Until that time, the cinchman had a 2 to 1 lead on the Garford team, with Pebleman, the Deisel Wemmer hurler pitching no hit ball. Pebleman up to that time had 12 strikeouts to his credit.

As a result of the forfeit, Garford was shoved down into third place.

OHIO STEEL LANDS SECOND PLACE

Chalmers, leading for the game that eclipsed every other play that had been made.

The victory gave Ohio Steel second place and forced Locomotive into fourth.

Chalmers and East Iron played the most interesting contest of the day, with East Iron emerging victors by a 2 to 1 count.

The score was the result of a play in the fourth inning when the home team scored a run on a sacrifice play.

Rowden of Chalmers allowed but two hits, but errors helped to bring him defeat.

GRAMM-BERNSTEIN BACK IN CONTEST

Gramm-Bernstein, after a week's absence from the running in the Industrial League, returned Saturday, but with a weakened team. They proved easy for the Solar outfit who took them down for a win by a 10 to 1 score.

Costello counted in every frame but the first. It was in that inning that the truck builders got their only tally.

The result of the day of action once more places the Deisel Wemmer team in the lead for the Starlet cup unless their forfeited game with Garford Saturday is thrown out after protest.

WALLER GETS BAD BRUISE

C. L. Waller, umpire who handled the last Rotary-Kiwanis game, is reported imported from an injury during the contest.

Waller was accidentally hit by a ball. It was thought at first that his knee had been fractured. X-Ray examination showed that the bone was not fractured but that it was badly bruised.

Physicians say that he will be fully recovered within a few weeks.

RULES STRINGENT ON FOUR BASE SMASHES

By Jack Keene.

THAT ninth inning home run has arisen as to whether he must go around the bases. The rule which governs that point has not been changed one iota. Possibly the old argument that arose in a Princeton game will be recalled. A Princeton batter hit the ball over the fence for a home run, presumably. He did not circle the bases, but walked to the Princeton bench. The other team demonstrated that he could not be declared out, and cited a rule to show that a fair hit over the fence was a home run. "The book," quoth he, "tells you that it is a home run whether I run or stand still."

The upshot of the matter was that a Princeton player was declared out, and the umpire ruled that he had not gone around the bases. The umpire ruled that he had not gone around the bases. The umpire ruled that he had not gone around the bases.

The umpire ruled that he had not gone around the bases. The umpire ruled that he had not gone around the bases. The umpire ruled that he had not gone around the bases.

YANKEE ATHLETES GET BIG OVATION AT ANTWERP

BY HENRY L. FARRELL

ANTWERP—The pick of amateur athletes of 27 nations, here for the Olympic games, were on their toes Saturday night awaiting the starter's pistol.

Formalities of the opening of the international contests, dedication of the huge stadium and other preliminaries, were gone thru Saturday with much pomp, color and ceremony.

Despite cheering crowds, gaily decorated stands and eager athletes, scars of the great war were still visible. Flags of Germany, Austria, Turkey and Russia were missing from the procession made up of the speedy, the powerful and the skillful of nations. Colors of those nations were also absent from the diplomatic boxes.

It was in the ranks of athletes that the results of the war were most noticeable, however. Youngsters who had given great promise in the last athletic contest of nations, held at Stockholm in 1912, and were expected to win high honors at the next event, were missing from the ranks. Many laid down their lives for their respective countries.

Little Belgium, just recovering from the war's devastation, has apparently done her best to put the big undertaking across.

BABE RUTH GETS HIS FORTY-SECOND HOMER—CLEVELAND LOSES FIFTH STRAIGHT GAME—NEW YORK YANKEES FORGE INTO SECOND PLACE

WHITE SOX WITHIN ONE GAME OF AMERICAN LEADERSHIP

CHICAGO—A postage stamp could have covered the three pace makers in the American League Saturday night.

Cleveland was out in front by the scant margin of two points with a percentage of .63157. Then came New York with a percentage of .63201. Chicago was third with a percentage of .62831.

Naturally it was Babe Ruth who put the Yanks into second place via 42nd home run of the season, made in the first inning off Jim Shaw.

gave New York the necessary one tally for a 3 to 2 victory. Shocker handed the Indians their fifth straight trimming, holding them to five hits. The Browns won 5 to 3. Just previously the Yanks had won four in a row from Speaker's crowd.

After Kerr had beaten Detroit 5 to 2 in the first game, Ehmke reciprocated by allowing the champions only five batters in the second game, winning 6 to 1.

FAIR TO OFFER GOOD SPEED PROGRAM

Preparations are under way for the completion of the Allen County Fair speed program by September 1. The program for the class races have been coming in a very encouraging manner while the stake races, with the entry lists closed after a selection of horses that can be relied on by the Grand Circuit.

It is the plan of the Fair board according to Secretary V. L. Mayer to complete the big program by September 1. The program for the class races have been coming in a very encouraging manner while the stake races, with the entry lists closed after a selection of horses that can be relied on by the Grand Circuit.

A complete string of horses from the Morehead Stables in Indiana has been entered for the stake races, while the Fair board has also a number of trotters and pacers on the list.

The stake and two class races are on the program for each day of the fair, with a big windup on Thursday when the big Elks stake will be thrusted into the running. The Merchants and Manufacturers stake the 2 1/2 mile trot for $2,000 will probably be one of the biggest drawing cards.

Skippy the Tin Peddler one of Joe Hagagan's ponies is in the competition for the big money. St. Patrick the Great John D. Rockefeller and other noted horses are also entered.

Four other thousand dollar stakes are on the weeks program with many horses of fame in this state entered in the running.

HURRY UP YOST CALLS FOR GRIDDERS

ANN ARBOR Mich.—A squad of 4 men is expected to furnish the material from which Fielding H. Yost, Michigan's veteran football coach, will construct his 1920 football machine. Invitations to that number of gridiron aspirants have been sent out, and the training season will get under way September 15, when a squad of ten letter men and twenty four others will report at Ferry field. A score of others have been invited to report September 22.

This will be the twentieth year at Ann Arbor. He will have the assistance of a number of former Michigan stars this year. Among them are Archie Hahn, former track leader who will have charge of the training squad, and Joe Madden, regarded as one of the greatest tackle ever produced in Michigan.

Among the letter men expected at Ann Arbor for the initial training work are Captain Angus Goetz, tackle, R. J. Dunne, end, Henry A. Vlek, center, Frank Steketee, guard, and Harold Rye, and Elton E. Weisman of Los Angeles also a letter man probably will be among those on the ground. He is regarded by Maize and Blue supporters as a strong tackle man, making with Captain Goetz a pair that can outlast any pair the team will meet this season.

While optimism is being held in check the outlook for a powerful team is felt to be much brighter this year than it was last fall. Eight veterans were out of the lineup as inevitable last fall. This year not one is on the ineligible list.

ST. MARY'S CLAIMS BEST BATTERY IN STATE FOR GAME WITH INDEPENDENTS

CLAIMING that they have the best battery in the state the St. Mary's baseball aggregation will romp out on the Murphy-st. diamond this afternoon confident that they can add another victory to the 11 out of 12 games, that they already have.

That's the essence of a letter to Bernie Halloran, manager of the Lima Independents, from the St. Mary's team.

The visiting outfit will open, this afternoon a scheduled five game series with the Lima Independents. It will be the second series that has been started by the Lima ball team in the past two weeks. The first was opened with Paulding last Sunday. The two series will be alternated.

Brown, a former Toledo Rail Light hurler and a 1st who won a reputation for himself by allowing the Boston Americans only two hits in an exhibition game, sometimes ago, is the reason why the St. Mary's team is so confident. Brown the St. Mary's manager says, will probably be in the box for them.

But the St. Mary's outfit will have nothing on the Lima team, when it comes to pitchers for two slabsmen will be on the bench for the Independents. Blauvelt, the southpaw who has been hurling regularly for Lima in the past few games will be in uniform this afternoon while Rohe, one of the latest additions to Independent line up will probably start the game.

Rohe is also a southpaw, and is a product of the Industrial league. If his condition warrants it, Halloran says, they will be no question about his starting the game today.

Connell, the other new addition to the Independent outfit, will go into the line-up in Karl Neas place.

ONE ARMED MAN A REAL BASEBALL WIZARD

CONNERSVILLE — This city has a one armed wonder. He is Robert H. Allison, Blackburn College student and athlete.

Allison who lost his arm to a mine explosion, does tricks with his single arm that has startled baseball fans. He is an outfielder and played all last season without an error. This year he was elected captain of the Blackburn College baseball team.

As a batter Allison is second to none on the team. He holds the club well up toward the heavy end smashes hits out all over the field. Last year he scored a home run.

In catching Allison flips the ball up in the air after he stops it, jerking off his glove and then hurls it all speed ahead to the basemen. Boys who play against him say hitting a ball into his territory is like dropping it into a well.

RESERVOIR WILL NOT BE COMPLETED FOR YEAR

ENGINEER MILLER GIVES OPINIONAlleged Defects in Bank Not to Be Repaired Now.

PUBLIC WORK IS INSPECTED

Expenditure of Nearly $10,000 is Necessary.

Alleged defects in the southwest corner of the dike surrounding the billion-gallon Lost Creek reservoir, declared by City Engineer Vaughn C. Miller several weeks ago to make it unsafe, may not be repaired until the reservoir is filled with water. This was the consensus of opinion of city councilmen who made an inspection of the proposed repairs Saturday afternoon.

To make the repairs necessary to allow the banks of the reservoir a one-to-three slope at the dangerous point will cost, according to Engineer Miller's estimate, $5,700, exclusive of the purchase of land. Four thousand dollars was appropriated for the work in the budget of the service department for the last half of the year 1920.

At the rate the work of constructing rip-rap around the reservoir is progressing at present, City Engineer Miller estimates it cannot be filled with water before next July.

"With the present financial condition of the city," said Councilman Schuller, "I think $5,000 could be spent to much better advantage in some other way, and when the time comes to fill the reservoir the financial situation may be better."

Other councilmen agreed with Schuller on this point. The lens of Engineer Miller included purchase of an additional quarter of an acre of land adjoining the reservoir on the southwest, and extending the dikes approximately 35 feet. This can be done as easily after the reservoir is filled as before, he declared.

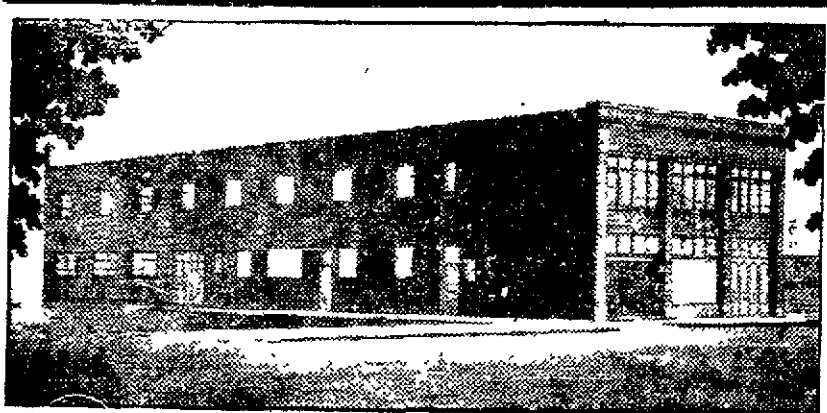

PUBLIC WORK INSPECTED
Inspection of the reservoir was the consummation of a tour made by councilmen Saturday afternoon in which they looked over all public work being conducted in the city. It is the plan of the council to make these inspections monthly, in order that they may be better acquainted with matters which come before them for action.

The tour started with a visit to the big Collett-st. sewer. The Askins relief sewer and a number of paving jobs were also inspected.

Lima Loses Prince of Sportsmen

J. C. LINNEMAN

Next Tuesday night at Shawnee Country club will be given a dinner-dance farewell to a Lima man, who for 30 years has been known as the prince of sportsmen. In his later years Col. J. C. Linneman has led the quiet life, but in the halcyon days of the Linneman Stock Farm, south of the city in Perrytown, when the great station Norval was in his prime, the name of Col. Linneman was known on every trotting track in the United States and Canada, and for a number of years he was one of the stewards of the Grand Circuit.

Even before the day when he was a patron of the track, Col. Linneman had left his mark on the oil industry. He was one of four men who founded, incorporated and later sold the Ohio Oil company to the Standard Oil company for the then highest price ever known for crude oil production, $550,000. He was the head and active force of that company, now having a surplus of $66,000,000 and with headquarters in Findlay dominates the fields of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois.

J. C. Linneman projected and built a portion of an independent pipe line to Chicago, later sold to the Standard. As an operator he was one of the largest of the Lima fields ever known and to him more than to any one man, must be given credit for opening the now famous fields of Mexico less than 20 years ago.

Lima regrets the departure of Col. Linneman, who still retains, however, the handsome hotel named for his famous racing favorite, Norval. Also a block on S. Main-st. and the beautiful stock farm south of the city, a stone's throw from the city limits. He recently sold his beautiful country home adjacent to the County club, built in 1902. He was the Father of Golf and it is worthy that the golf enthusiasts should bid him good-bye to his future home in California.

BUILDING CRAFTSMEN
WILL HOLD MEETING

Building trades craftsmen will hold a mass meeting at the court house, Wednesday evening, for the purpose of completing the organization of building trades council for Lima and vicinity. Plans with this end in view have been in progress for some time. Wednesday's meeting will be of particular interest as several representatives of the international unions interested in the movement are expected to be present.

All construction workers have been invited, and a big turnout is anticipated. The meeting will be held in the upper court room at 7:30 o'clock.

THREE DIVORCES
UNCONTESTEDNeglect and Desertion Made Grounds By Plaintiffs.

ALIMONY ALLOWED BY COURT

Two Wives and Husband Given Decrees Saturday.

Three divorces were granted by Judge William Klinger Saturday, all on the grounds of neglect. Neither of the three defendants appeared in court to contest the cases.

John W. Westlake, 734 S. Elizabeth-st., was given a divorce from Louisa C. Westlake, Cincinnati. She sued for divorce in May, 1916, then left him, he testified, and the case was dismissed for want of prosecution. He said he was always a true, kind and provident husband, but at his wife refused to cook and keep house and live with him.

They were married in Covington, Ky., in June, 1907, and have no children. The property settlement made by the parties was approved by the court.

Lucille Clark was divorced from Frank Clark and given the custody of their child, Frank Clark, Jr., 5 years. He must pay $5 a week for the boy's support until he is 16. Clark works at the Lake Erie and Western shops.

They were married in Milledgeville, Ga., in August, 1913. She told the court he refused to provide for himself and child the necessities of life for the last two years.

Lucy Crofut was divorced from Fred H. Crofut, whose residence is unknown, and given the custody of their three children. She told the court he would not work, unless given a particular kind of employment.

They were married in Kent on May 30, 1908, and have not lived together since October, last. She gave the household goods as all money, but must pay all court costs.

FIRE STARTS AS CAR HITS AUTO

Little Damage Results From Collision on Cole-st.

A few minutes after city street car No. 618 crashed into an automobile on Cole-st. at 10 o'clock Saturday night, fireman John Newland discovered the motor in the car was ablaze. The blaze was soon extinguished by Newland and Conductor Lawrence Kunkelman, who was in charge of the car, but not before three companies of the fire department arrived.

Conductor Miller said the man driving the car backed on the track and his engine stopped and he was apparently unable to get out of the way of the car. The motor was unable to stop the car in time to prevent the crash. The step of the street car was entirely torn off and the fenders of the automobile were badly bent. The owner of the automobile gave his name as S. A. Miller, Elida.

Record Egg Layers
Are Discovered
At Lafayette

A record of but seven non-layers in a flock of 198 hens was established on the farm of J. N. Patterson and son, Lafayette, last week.

The discovery was made by Prof. E. L. Dahan, expert poultry specialist from the Ohio State University, Columbus, while making visits to poultry farms in Allen-co. The object of his trip to Lima is to cull out non-laying hens for farmers.

The flock consists of single comb white Leghorns. They are of the Wyckoff strain. Patterson has made a specialty of egg production. He sells his product in the New York city market, at an average of 10 cents a dozen net over the local price.

He ascribes his good results to proper feeding, housing and care. Patterson also makes a specialty of registered Jersey cattle.

Perry September 1.

Some ninety Lima men, making up the local infantry unit of the National Guard, will take their vacation September 1 for two weeks of intensive training at Camp Perry, Ohio. Company C is the local unit, headed by Captain C. G. Stout, who was recently given command of the outfit, after a reorganization.

Practically the entire personnel of officers has been changed since the reorganization. Captain Stout announces Oscar C. Duppes has been commissioned first lieutenant. Charles Cady has been made first sergeant and Leonard Bowsher, quartermaster sergeant. The other non-commissioned officers have not as yet been appointed.

Some thirty recruits have been added to the company as the result of a recent drive for new members. Practically all equipment necessary for the outfitment to camp has been received by the company. Final arrangements for the period at camp are now near completion. The recruiting drive will be continued in an effort to bring the company up to its maximum membership.

COAL PROBE TO BE STARTED

Investigation of the coal situation in Lima is to be started by the Allen-co fair price commission early next week, Chairman J. B. Dugan declared Saturday.

"I do not believe there is any profiteering in Lima," Dugan said, "but an investigation must be started in order to get the matter before the fair price commission, and it might as well be in Lima as anywhere."

Dugan declared that while he does not believe Lima coal dealers are profiteering, he wishes to give them a chance to make a statement of the prices they are required to pay for coal, that the fair-price commission may take action where coal profiteering really is.

The results of the investigation will be reported to the state fair-price commissioner as soon as it is completed, Dugan declared.

Are Limaites Accommodating?
Read Experience Of Stranger

ARE Lima people accommodating in directing strangers about the city? This was tested yesterday by a stranger from the hills of southern Indiana.

Here's his story:
"On W. High-st I hailed a man with his arms full of bundles as he was heading for a street car, and I asked, 'Sir, can you direct me to the State hospital?'"

"That I can," he said as his car went by and he explained to me how to reach the hospital.

"Next I tried a group of street car conductors standing at Main and High-sts. and asked, 'How can I get to the City hospital?'"

"They answered in chorus, 'Go over to that corner and take a Bellefontaine-ave. car.'"

ACCOSTS STOUT WOMAN
"I saw a stout woman climbing into her limousine and I asked her to direct me to the Y. M. C. A."

"She eyed me suspiciously, then smiled and said, 'Ask any policeman.'"

"Two girls were walking arm-in-arm. I asked them, 'How far is it to McBeth's park?'"

"One said, 'I don't know. I never walked it,' and the other said, 'Beat it.'"

"So I did.
"Next I stopped a collarless young man who was rolling a cigarette and asked, 'Where's the police station?'"

"He answered with a grin 'If you had been there as often as I you'd know the train.'"

SEWER, 25 YEARS OLD, FALLS INCouncilmen find state of decay on inspection trip.

INTENDED AS RELIEF OUTSET

Much Repair May Be Necessary,
City Engineer Says.

That the old Timberlake sewer may soon fall into decay, unless extensive repairs are made, was brought to the attention of members of the city council Saturday. An inspection showed that the roof has already commenced to fall in, a few yards east of the intersection with the Collett-st. sewer at Spring-st.

Use of the sewer, constructed over 25 years ago, was discontinued when construction of the Collett-st. sewer reached this point. It is the intention, however, according to Supervising Engineer R. F. Darling, that it serve as a relief sewer during flood periods, when the larger one is overtaxed. The new sewer is constructed 37 inches lower than the one being abandoned, which will make it automatically carry off excess sewage during floods.

City Engineer Miller declared Saturday he did not know what action will be taken. An investigation, he said, might show the necessity of making repairs entirely to the mouth, at Ottawa river.

What Other Car Can Do This?

In July a Standard stock Holmes touring car was driven from Chicago to Cincinnati in 9 hours, 1 minute—an average road speed of 39.5 miles per hour.

A week later the same car was driven from Chicago to Milwaukee and return—195.3 miles—on a Non-Stop LOW GEAR Run—at an average speed of 9.1 miles per hour and on 2 quarts of lubricating oil.

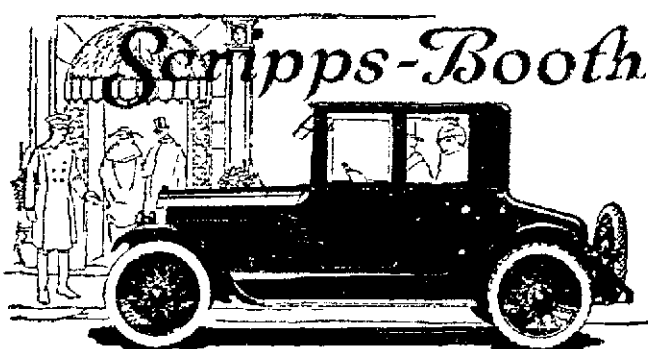

On July 29th a gasoline economy record of 58 miles to the gallon was established driving through Chicago streets.

Here is road speed, cooling efficiency, economy and dependability, which cannot be duplicated in any other standard full size seven-passenger car—if you want this kind of service get it in the HOLMES.

MANY PLAYS NOT HIGHEST CLASS

Quantity Not Quality Rule in Gotham Theatres

THE REVIEW OF THE RIALTO

Dramas of Wall-Street Are Much The Fashion

By DIXIE HINES

NEW YORK.—The week immediately past was marked by quantity rather than quality of production. Following closely upon two competing Wall-street plays, "Opportunity" from the stable of William A. Brady and "Crooked Gamblers," launched by A. H. Woods, "The Charm School" justified its title the following evening, followed by "Americans in France," a dedication, whatever that may mean, of Eugene Brieux, "Scrambled Wives," a farce comedy staged for Adolph Klammer and a group of three Celtic plays, "Lady Gregory's ever funny 'Workhouse Ward,' Sygne's poetical tragedy, "Riders to the Sea, and a new Irish comedy, "Honest Landings." Even a cursory view, and there were many "cursory" views on the especially hot nights—would indicate that if one expected a reluctant season, that person was doomed to disappointment.

The competing Wall Street plays need not have hastened. They were interesting to those familiar with the peculiar twists of stock tradings. "Crooked Gamblers," which came from Mr. Woods's storehouse, the atmosphere was more genuine and there was better acting in the main. This is the play which already has been heard of as "Tomorrow's Price," by Samuel Shipman and Percival Wilde and which bears a striking resemblance of a certain well known stock broker and a make of automobile well known to a modest and successful automobile tire factory is conducted by two partners, a financial man and a practical man. The former wishes to place the stock on the market and have a well but not too favorably known broker, float it. This is determined upon after a heated debate between the partners. The stock is floated and the time is ripe to kick the bottom out. The "good" partner decides to fight the operators against all odds to save his own good name and that of his firm. He does fight him but the stock is hammered down to zero and it looks pretty bad for all concerned except the speculator. Then a happy turn is given. The speculator himself has been caught. He has sold short, and is compelled to buy from the good partner at the latter's own price. So the hitler is bitten, and the good young man succeeds, gets his company back in good repute, wins the girl whom he has loved, is reinstated in the good graces of every one and the audience luvvies pleased but somewhat puzzled over margins, shorts, stocks, fluctuations and points, but feeling that somehow it is all right. The players include Taylor Holmes who is clever in the part of the investor, Felix Krambe who is commanding as the unscrupulous stock broker and a cast uniformly good.

"The Charm School," which was adapted by Robert Milton from the Alice Miller stories, staged by Mr. Milton and produced by him, was a genuine artistic treat and one of the most delightful comedies that has been staged on Broadway in a decade. A group of four living in unhappy bachelorhood, have a girl boarding school thrust upon one of them by the death of the woman who had long run it, and who bequeathed it to her nephew. The nephew decided to undertake its conduct. He has certain ideas how young girls should be educated. The calculus may be all right but it doesn't count when measured by grace and charm, so he decides to have them taught dancing, and manners, and lingerie devotion and all the things that make them charming. Of course he is a charming young man himself, and there is consternation and a sentimental upheaval among the girls when he comes to take charge. He only succeeds in establishing a cupid avary and finds himself enmeshed in an adolescent love affair with one of the principal pupils. It is comedy, pure and simple. Clean, delightful enjoyable comedy, acted skillfully by a group of delightful flappers of various styles of architectural beauty.

But aside from this interesting group there was a performance which will rank as the one of the best seen on Broadway long after

Questions And Answers

ANSWERS TO MOVIE QUESTIONS
Ethel—Bryant Washburn is in Europe now on vacation. His wife is with him. "What Happened to Jones," is his new Paramount picture which is being shown this month.

H. R. M.—You probably refer to Stevenson's story "The Pavilion on the Links." In its picture form, Maurice Tourneur, who produced it, has titled it "The White Circle." This white circle, while I hadn't thought of it in that light before, is the mark of an Italian society not unlike the so-called "black hand."

Jim Lyne—Dorothy Dalton lives in New York, where she is at work on a new picture "Gully of Love," is her latest finished photoplay.

Eileen—Douglas MacLean is taking a vacation now out in California. He has just finished up his "The Jailbird" and will begin work on a few weeks on "And So They Were Married."

Sam—Billie Burke is 35, although she looks younger. And I'm breaking it to you gently—she is married and to that supreme judge of pretty women, Florenz Ziegfeld, Jr., the musical comedy man. They have a daughter, Patricia.

G. A.—Eld Bennett was born in Australia. She is working out at the huge studio near Los Angeles. "Hairpins" is her latest picture.

Allice—Monte Blue is thirty. He attended Purdue university and was in vaudeville two years before beginning his screen career.

J. A. S.—Mac Murray is in Europe on a vacation with her husband, Robert Z. Leonard, who directed Marion Davies in "The Reckless Sex."

Lillian—Thomas Meighan was born in Pittsburgh, Penn., and played two years with the Pittsburgh Company. Yes, he is the same man you saw with Warfield in "The Return of Peter Grimm." Soon after that he went into pictures and has been so successful in his parts in "The Miracle Man" and "The Prince Chap" that he has been rewarded with stardom in "Civillian Cyphers," which is a Paramount release for September.

Dot—Dorothy Gish's hair is not really bobbed and black. She has a wig. Her hair is long and blonde. Think it over before you bob yours; it takes a long time for it to grow out, you know.

L. M.—Conrad Nagel is 24. He was born in Des Moines, Iowa, and educated at Highland Park College. On the stage he played opposite Alice Brady in "For-ever After." Anna Q. Nilson plays opposite him in "The Lighted Chance," which is the latest picture in which he appears.

The season is over, and this production is made with a full realization that it has just started. Minnie Dupree, a consummate artist, has long been absent from Broadway, and as well remembered as her past work is, her charm and cleverness in handling the role of an old maid secretary who is still capable of an amorous thrill will live long in the memory. Miss Dupree gained the unusual distinction of an appreciative reception on her first appearance, and on each exit, which invariably was accompanied by a most entertainingly funny comedy situation. This rare actress and her rare art did a great deal to help the great success achieved by "The Charm School." Marie Carroll as the adolescent little Juliet, Sam Hardy as the new master and Margaret Dale as the proprietress of the school added to the interest. And the ensemble beauty and vivacity also helped.

THEATRE IS HOT DAY MECCA

Sweating Humanity Seeks Cool Movie Show Retreat.

DIRECTORY FOR THIS WEEK

Constance Talmadge to Appear in "The Perfect Woman."

(BY ESTHER WAGNER)
DURING the hot days of August, many people, movie fans and otherwise, seek the cool interiors of picture shows, and naturally, they like light, merry films to entertain them, pictures that will make them forget that the thermometer is up. With this thought in mind, local managers have announced an unusually fine program of pictures for the coming week, as a glance at the directory will show.

Foremost among the week's productions is "The Perfect Woman," which stars Constance Talmadge. Another John Emerson-Anita Loos, this newest vehicle of the popular Connie is a hum-dinger. It's a most original story and gives the mischievous Miss Talmadge ample opportunity to display her talent, and charms. The Regent will feature this film the latter part of the week.

Will Rogers' pictures are steadily gaining in popularity, and his latest film, "Cupid, The Cowpuncher," which is to be shown at the Regent today, and for three days, will make for this well-known star many more friends. The title is rather unusual, isn't it?

A special feature will be shown at the Lyric for four days, starting today. It's "Blind Youth," about which we have read so much, and which stars Ora Carew. Miss Carew is steadily rising in fame and numbers her admirers by the hundreds.

Earle Williams will be seen at the Lyric the last three days of the week in "The Master Stroke," a Vitaphone special.

The Majestic Theatre announces an exceptional program for the forthcoming week, which includes Constance Binney, Charles Ray, and

The Faurot's program is decided by good this week, and includes Ethel Clayton, Charles Ray, and Bryant Washburn. "Mrs. Temple's Telegram" is the feature showing at this theatre today, starring Bryant Washburn. No need to say that it's an entertaining film.

Then on Tuesday and Wednesday, will be seen Ethel Clayton's newest, "A Lady in Love." Thursday brings the real feature of the week, Charles Ray in "Paris Green," produced as only Mr. Ray's pictures can be produced.

"CUPID THE COWPUNCHER"
The filming of "Cupid—the Cowpuncher," the Goldwyn pictures starring Will Rogers which comes to the Regent Theatre for three days, commencing today, called for a replica of the famous Harvey eating houses. The author of the scenario wrote, "A Harvey eating house," and the director echoed, "A Harvey eating house. No other kind will do."

That is why Helene Chadwick, leading woman for Will Rogers wears a reversible apron in the picture, the only kind of an apron worn by the Harvey waitresses, and worn by them alone. Strictly speaking, this was not exactly necessary, for there is only a tell-tale line of machine stitching to show this apron different from any other, and not one person in ten would notice the presence or absence of that stitching. But it is just that one person who isn't going to be given a chance to say, "Well, that's not a Harvey apron, anyway."

So the stitching is all there, and for a good reason, which is this. This peculiar apron has a pocket on both sides, so that no matter which side is worn out, the pocket comes just where it ought to be, within reach of the right hand, while on the left side is only the almost imperceptible line of stitching where the other pocket is sewn on. Miss Chadwick never knows whether she is wearing her apron wrong side or right side out.

SUNSHINE REVIEW
Arthur Heuk who is at the head of the Sunshine Revue, which plays at the Orpheum all week, starting Monday, is a firm believer in the efficiency of good humor. He says smiles add miles of life in this matter-of-fact world. It is just to drive away the blues and make life brighter that he concocted the Sunshine Revue. Some talented principals, a big chorus of jolly girls, all endowed with a superabundance of vitality, beauty and youth, costumed in a wealth and extravagance that beggars description, are calculated to bring sunshine where clouds formerly were.

Catchy songs, the best of the season, snappy comedy that leads from one laugh to another, musical specialties that sparkle and tease as they please, all are delightfully woven into a plot not too complex with the one object of your pleasure—that's the Sunshine Revue. The phenomenal success that has attended the presentation of this brilliant bit of musical comedy proves that Heuk has singled out the likes of the amusement public, and is giving them what they want with a discriminating keenness found only in the born showman.

Of all the girls I've ever known
Each one of them it seems,
Lacks just what it requires to make Them ideals of my dreams.
There's Daisy's true fidelity,
So sacred and serene,
Who lacks Juanita's pretty charms,
And prudence of Irene.

Juanita's eyes and dimples too
Are very hard to beat,
But she has not the cheerfulness
Of Nell, who'd be complete,
Were she as prudent as Irene.
Who'd be the girl for me,
But she's not true like Daisy who Loves with fidelity.

Could I but take the cheer of Nell,
The prudence of Irene,
And add them both to Daisy's love,
So sacred and serene,
To these I add Juanita's charms,
Her pretty eyes and curl,
I'd mould them all in one, and then
I'd have my ideal girl.

Fertility of eggs which start incubation at 68 or 70 degrees is the real cause of this execution upon Mr. Rooster. For most hen houses register about 55 degree these hot afternoons and fertile eggs are soon destroyed.

Rooster day is to save the feed the birds eat and also to allow the farmer better eggs and a greater profit in the sale of good eggs on the market thruout the remainder of the season.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS

TRADE and banking concerns are beginning to reflect better sentiment than for many weeks. While it is perfectly true and not to be denied even in Lima, that many factories have gone on short time and others have shut down entirely, to a great extent little of the labor has been lost but has been directed to other lines. In Lima, it is admitted certain industries are temporarily working very moderate shifts, but the locomotive, steel and cigar factories are advertising for men. There still remains a dearth of common labor all over the country.

The woolen, cotton, leather, tire and automobile industries are and have to a great extent been undergoing a slowing down process. Credits are still curtailed in all financial circles. Interest rates in New York the past week, however, never advanced higher than seven per cent for call money. Copper, lead and other metals are slumping, but steel unfilled tonnage is still large, and pig iron, the nation's barometer, is firm and advancing.

Food stuffs are fluctuating, with a weaker sugar market and declining meat tendency. Building and construction work generally has almost completely stopped over the nation and the housing problem has ceased to be discussed.

The future, or rather the immediate fall outlook, is good. The drop in retail prices will not be noticeable to any great extent, but there will be lessened demand. People as a whole from the cheapest labor to the millionaire are buying sensibly, not ostentatiously. The country is getting on a better basis, with wages firm, but not advancing. The credit for labor has been passed, and strikes or rather shut-downs, will be the new answer to any unreasonable demands, while for all reasonable adjustments, employers will go the extreme limit to please good labor.

All Uncle Sam needs for the next year is work, with the workers saving ten per cent of their pay-checks and depositing that sum in good banks. If any demand comes up, these savings are immediately available to owners, and if not needed, they are aiding in carrying on industry. No man or woman should use a pocket or stocking bank. Put your money in circulation by placing it in your favorite bank, and remember that every Lima bank is as secure as a government vault.

DISSATISFACTION CROPS OUT

THAT there is dissention and dissatisfaction in the ranks of the Allen-co republican organization was brought out clearly when the committee met to organize for the coming campaign. While a break did not result, it did show that one wing of the organization is not satisfied with the way the old bosses are conducting affairs.

The difference of opinion is between the older and the younger factions of the party. The young bloods sought to unhorse the men who have been at the helm for years, but were not successful.

A part of the G. O. P. in the county is going into the campaign out of tune with the other and dissatisfied with its leaders. The attempt to usurp its power probably will remain in the mind or the old ring and will not tend to make for harmony. The first inter-party tilt is most significant.

CONCERNING MR. PONZI

FINANCIAL wizards develop from time to time, enjoy the spotlight for a brief period and then pass out of the public's eye and often in passing out pass into some prison or other. Men have devised various schemes for getting rich quick, but none not absolutely in accordance with the hard and fast rules of business and the laws of humanity have stood the test.

Just now the latest financial genius, the man who handled his money in bushel baskets and promised to make thousands wealthy and hoped to make himself millions, is held under bonds on federal and state charges and is languishing in fear of having his life ended by some enemy. No one knows how much money Charles Ponzi made for himself and creditors on his plan of "50 per cent in 45 days," but it is evident that he handled millions. The government believes there is something wrong and some 40,000 clients of the Italian genius fear there is something wrong.

The greed for money today overshadows everything else. It is easy for confidence men, despite the bursting of thousands of bubbles made to look promising by a smooth tongue, to dupe victims. Millions are lost every year. The lure of money cannot be resisted.

There is only one sure way to win on the get-rich-quick schemes and that is to steer clear of them. Sound investments will pay in the long run. Ask a banker for advice if you are dealing with a stranger.

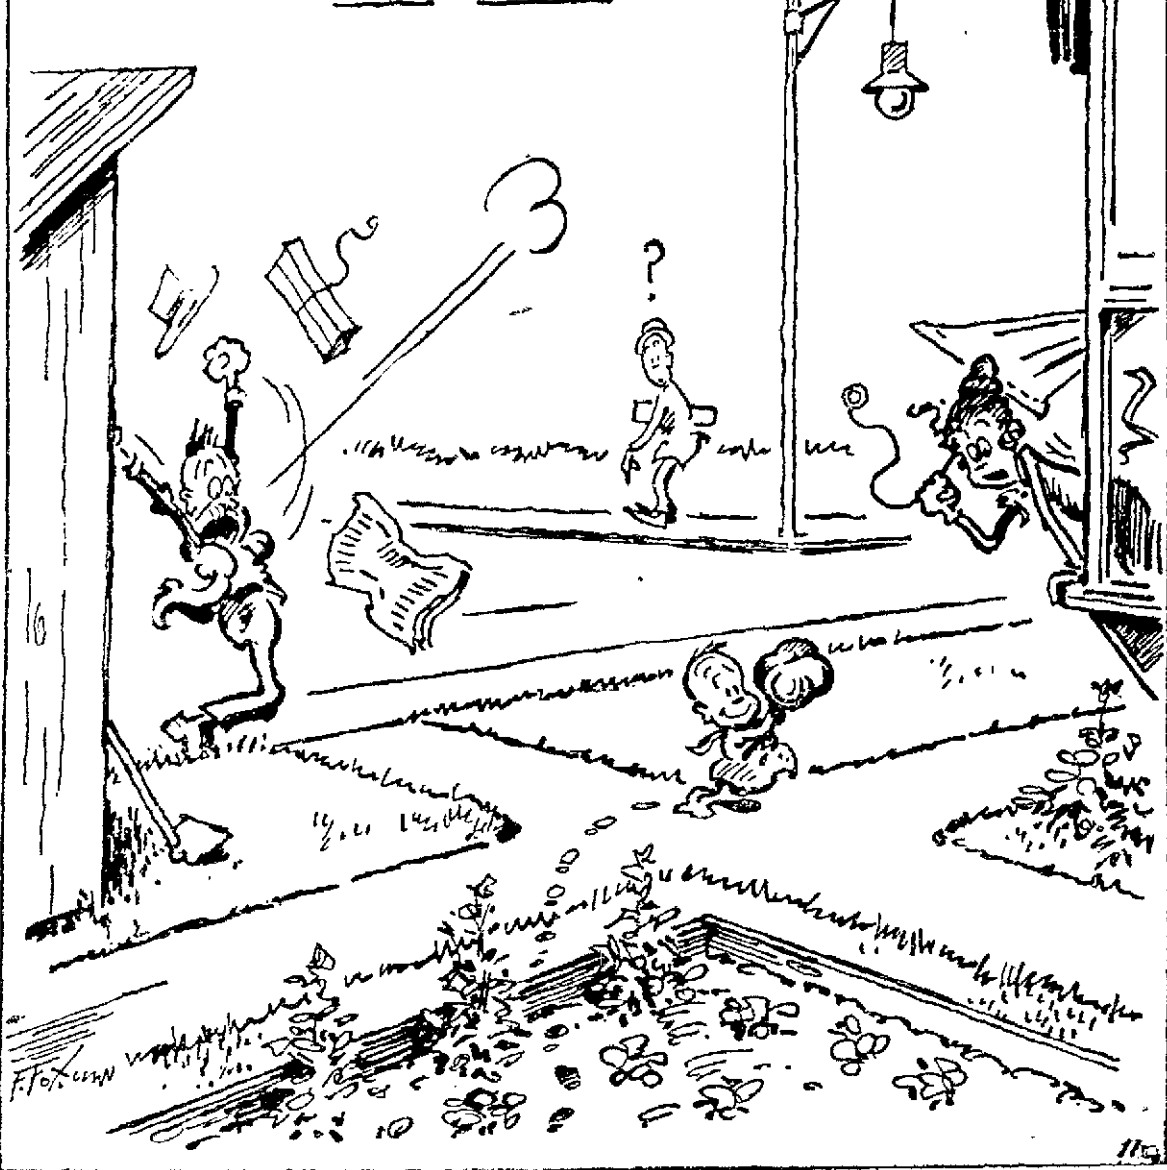

A SAD BLOW

TO those who have depended on the little contrivances of wood known as ouija boards to solve their problems and look into the future, the statement of the man who makes the boards and who incidentally has made a fortune, that the public "are fools" probably comes as a severe jolt.

Laughingly, the ouija board magnate admitted that he did not claim the boards he put out by the thousands and which the public has been buying as fast as they were made, have any powers to do things they are usually supposed to do. He prints instructions for the users, but further than referring to persons as being "psychic" he makes no promises.

About the only things these boards have accomplished have been the derangement of the minds of scores of persons and the filling of the pockets of makers and distributors. They have enjoyed an unparalleled run of popularity in this country in the last year or two and the bad effects have been felt in many localities. The statements of the maker should tend to prove they are merely toys to be treated lightly and lessen the trouble resulting.

HEALTH HINTS

By William Brady, M. D.
NORMALITY AND SUPER-NORMALITY

The various self-tests of heart efficiency which I have described in the foregoing talks serve the purpose of showing you whether your heart is as good as you think it is. They will help to put your mind of that reality of "no organic disease." If your heart fails to pass these tests I have described, it is functionally inefficient and a heart which is functionally inefficient is, of course, organically diseased. I am sorry that the artificial and illogical distinction between so-called "functional" and "organic" disease of the heart, particularly has been so freely suggested by the medical profession in the past, for this unwarranted distinction has only led to unwarranted negligence or procrastination on the part of the patient whose heart disease happened to be dubbed "merely functional." When a heart does not function normally, it is high time to take care; whatever may be possible to accomplish in the way of prevention and of cure should be sought immediately.

Suppose a youth or young adult finds his heart efficient, according to the self-tests in the preceding talks, and that he contemplates engaging in athletic activities, as an amateur or professional athlete, particularly in contests of agility, strength or endurance. Suppose the high school boy or the college man contemplates taking part in track races or in football. His heart must then be developed to enlarge its reserve power; the heart muscle must be strengthened and usually enlarged by intelligent training, and as the muscles of the leg must be developed for running or those of the abdomen and chest for breathing. The heart of the trained athlete is an enlarged heart (hypertrophy of the heart, as a doctor might say). It is, of course, no more efficient for maintaining circulation under ordinary conditions than is a functionally efficient heart, which is not so developed; but it can meet the unusual demand on reserve power which a severe athletic contest makes upon the heart muscle. Now, the question is, may a high school boy or man under 21 safely acquire this athletic hypertrophy of the heart by rigorous training and then suddenly cease athletic activities about Thanksgiving time?

From Our Readers

Editor Lima Daily News and Democrat:

I desire to answer the letter recently published in your paper from a reader in regard to the race question. Who is it that some poor ignorant white man is always desirous of cutting the negro? Have not the negroes proved themselves true Americans, fought in every war, and has this man who signs himself Reader, ever tried to find out what the negroes really have done?

What about the negro on March 5, 1770 who struck the first blow for freedom? What about the negroes at Ft. Pillow, at Ft. Wagner and other instances? What about the negro in the Spanish-American war? What did the 24th and 25th do at El Caney? What have the negro troops done in the great World War? Were there not more than 300,000 negroes who fought side by side with the white men?

The negroes helped to build up the Southland, so that the white man could live there in comfort and plenty. What about the seven million dollars taxes the negroes pay every year? Have not the negroes earned a place for themselves in American history, the same as the white men?

It is not to be considered equal to the foreigner who comes here and in a few years sows the seed of discontent in the hearts of his fellow countrymen, and then returns to his native land, after the injury has been done? The negro knows negro to every 100 white prisoners.

YOUR NAME

—ROWAN—
VARIATIONS — Rohan, Roan, Rouham, Ruane.
RACIAL ORIGIN — Irish, also English.

SOURCE — Given names, also geographical.

By far the majority of families bearing names in this group are of Irish origin, but not all; for one variation, the name also developed in medieval England from an independent source.

The larger of the two Irish sources of the name is the given name of "Rohan," which, liberally translated means "the chosen one." The "O'Roghains," to use the nearest equivalent to the old Irish spelling, trace back in nearly every case to a chieftain of this name who was a descendant in the line of O'Des.

The other source is from the given name, or sobriquet "Ruadh," meaning "red." Ruadh is met with most frequently in Irish nomenclature, but always in the form of a descriptive addition to the family name, distinguishing one branch of a family from another by its coloring which explains we see often meet such terms in Irish, and even Scottish history as "The Red O'Connor," "The Black Douglas" and the like. But only under very exceptional circumstances have such qualifying terms developed into real family names in the Gaelic tongue. The usual course would be for such a word first to become a given name, and from this develop into a family name. So with "Ruadh," the family name developed from which is properly Ruane. But the similarity of sound between Rowan and Ruane has often led to their interchange in English spelling.

The English family name is properly Roan, which was the common medieval spelling of the name of the city Rouen, in France. Settlers in England from foreign cities quite commonly came to be known by the names of the cities or countries whence they came. Picardy, Antwerp, Cologne and Lyons have given many English family names.

The 'Readiness to Serve Charge'

What Is It?

742 Gas Companies in cities and towns in the United States and Canada have been granted the right to charge it.

MISSOURI PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION

ON

THE "READINESS-TO-SERVE" CHARGE PRINCIPLE

In the Sedalia gas rate case the Missouri Public Service Commission approved the readiness-to-serve charge principle as follows:

"In fixing the form of rate schedule, we have approved the Company's suggestion of a service charge in lieu of the more common minimum charge. We believe that it is the more equitable in that it more nearly assigns to each consumer the costs actually incurred by that consumer. If a consumer is living in a house adjacent to a street containing a gas main, he costs the company nothing until he becomes a consumer. As soon, however, as he elects to use gas the company is put to an additional expense, regardless of whether the consumer uses any gas. A meter is installed. It is read every month, the bills are made out, collections are made, the meter and service pipe are kept in repair, in addition to the interest and depreciation of these items. There are also some gratuitous services and inspections for which no charges are made. While we have not computed the exact costs of this personal service in this case, the items are well known generally and have been estimated by the company at 50c per meter. (This is not excessive.

"The minimum charge is more general and perhaps better understood at the present time. It is more discriminatory, since each customer may use gas to the value of 50 cents, and may be charged only that amount in the monthly bill, whereas he has not only used 50 cents worth of gas, but he has incurred customer costs, which we might call personal costs, to the amount of another 50 cents. This is unfair to other consumers who must make up the other costs.

"Objections to the service charge are usually based on a misunderstanding as to the purpose thereof. Consumers will argue that no other line of business attempts to maintain such a charge. In other lines of business this charge is not practical and is not applied for that reason. The fundamental fact is that in other lines a merchant can refuse to deal with an unprofitable customer or make up the loss from other sales. Public Utilities, however, must treat all alike. They must furnish service to all persons who will comply with reasonable rules, and in order that some consumers may not be burdened with the costs incurred by the more profitable these unprofitable consumers should at least pay the expenses actually incurred by serving them. The service charge approaches this much more nearly than the minimum charge.

MISSOURI PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION

50% of the consumers on our lines are not profitable, inasmuch as they do not bear their portion of the expenses.
